Wide range in bids for gold in auction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government opened bids today on two million ounces of gold put on sale as a lure to keep down imports of the previous metal.

Officials had no exact count of the sealed bids submitted in the auction, but they numbered well over 100.

The first dozen or so bids ranged from $45.10 an ounce to $188 an ounce for the 400-ounce bars being offered.

The first bid opened was from Austern & Paul of New York. They bid on a 400-bar at $156 an ounce.

The second bid, from Vito G. De Marino of San Diego, Calif. was for a single bar at $45.10 an ounce.

The high offer in the early bidding was from Leslie E. Ellisson of Wayne, N.J. for a single bar at $188 an ounce.

The early bids were all for amounts no greater than 400 ounces. Besides individuals, other bids came from jewelry and electronics manufacturers. Most of the bids were clustered in the $150 to $165 range.

The bid opening took place in a government auditorium at a long table where auctioneer George Jamieson, received envelopes containing the offers.

In calm tones, Jamieson called out the bids and the names of the bidders, one after another.

The amount of gold offered by the government at the auction totals less than one per cent of the entire U.S. gold holdings.

The offering is worth around $350 million at the $175 an ounce price prevailing on most markets late last week.

The auction was planned to avoid a surge in imported gold once it became legal on Dec. 31 for American citizens to own gold for the first time since the Depression. A rush of imported gold would have weakened the U.S. balance of payments situation.

Anticipation that U.S. citizens would eagerly acquire the precious metal sent gold prices upward to around $200 an ounce late last month. However, the ho-hum response from the American public last week sent the price down to the $175 level.

Foreign governments and their agents were barred from participating in the auction.

The government reserved the right to reject any bids it considered too low, but a Treasury Department official said before the auction that the government was prepared to be liberal in deciding what would be a reasonable price.

The auction was not the first sale of gold from U.S. stocks. The government had sold small amounts periodically to jewelers and other industrial users in the late 1960s before movements toward world monetary reform led to suspension of the practice.

Gold prices are steady in Europe

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices held steady in moderate trading on the London and Zurich markets today as results of the American bullion auction came too late to have any effect.

An officer of Mocatta and Goldschmid, a major London gold dealer, said: "We have heard what prices have been offered in the U.S. auction but the London market is closed to all intents and purposes and we do not wish to say what may happen when it reopens tomorrow."

The U.S. government put two million ounces of gold on sale today, and most of the early bids ranged from $150 to $165 an ounce for the 400-ounce bars offered.

The Big Five dealers in London "fixed" gold at $173.50 an ounce in mid-afternoon. The price was down from $174.25 Friday but up 50 cents from the morning fixing, the price at which dealers expect to trade.

In Zurich, gold closed at the morning high of $174 after some gyrating during the day. The price was $3 above Friday's close and $2 above the day's low.

Today's prices remained far below the all-time high of $198 an ounce reached one week ago.

Variations in local supply apparently accounted for the difference between the London and Zurich prices, which normally settle at much the same rate.

The dollar rallied fractionally against the Swiss franc in Zurich following rumors of small-scale intervention by the Swiss national bank. The bank declined comment.

Third compromise

Senate begins usury debate

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—A compromise measure boosting the state's 8 per cent interest ceiling passed the Missouri Senate today and was sent to the House.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Senate debate on a bill to hike the state's eight per cent interest ceiling began today with consideration of a third compromise measure.

Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, an opponent of any hike in the limit opened the debate by resuming the questioning of both technical and substantive aspects of the measure.

Both the House and the Senate will have only two days to reach a final decision on the bill, the major reason Gov. Christopher S. Bond called the special session, since the regular session of the new 78th General Assembly officially begins at noon Wednesday.

The bill, the third effort to merge House and Senate proposals since the session began Nov. 19, had been passed by the Senate in a similar form before the holiday recess and no major opposition is expected during discussion of the bill today.

But a combine of rural and urban legislators in the House are expected to continue their fight against the proposal when that chamber gets back to work this afternoon, some on the grounds that there is no need for any boost at all and others based on opposition to so-called points, or a percentage of a loan paid at the time it is secured.

The debate on the bill resumed only a few days after two federal government institutions announced reductions in interest rates for home buyers, one for the eighth straight time.

The bill, which was sent to a joint conference committee Dec. 19 for technical modifications that backers hope will increase rural support for its passage, boosts the interest ceiling on home and all agricultural loans from 8 per cent, among the lowest in the nation, to 10 per cent.

It would allow a maximum charge of two points on home loans and permit a prepayment penalty charge if the loan is paid off during the first five years.

The compromise version exempts from any limit corporate loans, business and other loans secured by bonds or similar collateral over $5,000 and nonresidential or nonagricultural real estate loans.

Urban redevelopment corporations would be able to pay 10 per cent interest on the bonds they issue instead of the current 6 per cent and violations of the new law would be a misdemeanor.

The legal charges would go into effect immediately upon the signature of the governor if two-thirds of each house approves of that emergency provision.

"I think it has a better than 50-50 chance of passing," said House Minority Leader Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, although several GOP representatives cast votes during action on the bill last month that indicated they opposed the measure, which is supported by Bond.

But Speaker Pro Tem Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, said the fate of the proposal in the House depends on the votes of members who have been uncommitted.

Egyptian students protest detention

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hundreds of Egyptian students demonstrated today against the detention of 200 persons for antigovernment protests in Cairo last week. Thirty of the detainees are members of the outlawed Communist party.

Security officials said about 300 students protested near Cairo and Ein Shams universities and were quickly dispersed by police.

Leaders of last week's demonstration, called to protest rising prices, were charged with using Egypt's economic troubles to instigate antigovernment disturbances.

The Egyptian cabinet met for 10 hours Sunday and allocated more foreign reserves toward relieving recurring food shortages.

The Arab world reacted angrily over the weekend to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's statement that the United States would intervene militarily against Middle East oil producers if they threaten "strangulation of the industrialized world."

His comments, published in Business Week magazine, prompted a storm of editorial and government protests in Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, Iraq and Algeria over the weekend. President Houari Boumedienne of

Congressional inquiries into CIA will go ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders say their planned investigations into the CIA's alleged domestic intelligence work will proceed even though President Ford has appointed an eight-man commission to probe the spy agency.

Ford named Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller to head the commission Sunday which was created to "determine whether the CIA has exceeded its statutory authority." The agency, which is limited by law to foreign intelligence, allegedly has spied on Americans in the United States.

The panel is to report in 90 days. White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the report would be sent to Congress and released to the public.

The other commissioners appointed by Ford were former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, retired Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, former Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Joseph Lane Kirkland, retired University of Virginia President Edgar F.

Shannon, former Commerce Secretary John T. Connor and former Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott praised the commission members as "distinguished men without personal axes to grind" and as "men of great national reputation."

But Scott said it was necessary for the congressional inquiries to go ahead. CIA investigations previously were announced by Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., chairman of the House CIA oversight committee; Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate CIA oversight panel; and Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., incoming chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Nedzi, vowing to continue his panel's probe, welcomed the appointment of the presidential commission and said he would appreciate any insights the commission may offer "into the problem of reconciling a secret agency with an open society."

The House CIA subcommittee will meet next week to map its investigation. Nedzi said he will urge that the panel's work be done in public.

Neither Stennis nor Sparkman was immediately available for comment.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., who conducted his own personal inquiry into the CIA's links with the Watergate scandal, commended Ford for creating the commission. Baker added that the commission did not reduce the need for independent congressional action.

The make-up of the commission came under some criticism. One lawmaker, who asked not to be identified, said the close personal relationship between Rockefeller and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made it a "self investigation."

Kissinger also serves as head of the National Security Council, which is directly responsible for the CIA. Kissinger is known to have urged Ford to create such a commission.

Provincial capital defenders withstand North Viet attack

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese defenders of Phuoc Binh withstood a heavy North Vietnamese mortar barrage and battled tanks advancing to the heart of the isolated provincial capital today in the fifth day of heavy fighting.

In Cambodia, government troops reportedly broke through an insurgent blockade to relieve a 400-man force trapped on the east bank of the Mekong River two miles from Phnom Penh.

Rebel forces fired a predawn rocket barrage at the Phnom Penh airport and continued to attack the estimated 1,000 government troops guarding the western approach to the city in the sixth day of what is believed to be the rebels' dry-season offensive against the capital.

Communist forces shelled the western edge of Saigon today in the closest rocket attack to the South Vietnamese capital since before the signing of the cease-fire agreement nearly two years ago.

The Viet Cong fired a dozen 100-pound rockets shortly after midnight Sunday at the Phu Lam international communications center two miles west of the city limits, the South Vietnamese military command reported.

Half of the rockets landed in a village, killing a family of four, wounding eight others and destroying more than 20 homes. The rest of the rockets landed in rice paddies and did no damage.

In Cambodia, military officials reported that Khmer Rouge insurgents fired 43 rockets at the Phnom Penh airport three miles west of the city before dawn. Officials said the rockets landed in a grassy field around the runway and in an army transportation camp and did only minor damage.

The Saigon command said North Vietnamese tanks and infantrymen advanced behind a 1,000-round mortar barrage for their fifth day of attacks on Phuoc Binh City. But radio communications with the provincial capital 75 miles north of Saigon were still intact, the command reported.

It said South Vietnamese fighter-bombers attacked a column of 10 North Vietnamese medium tanks half a mile from the Phuoc Binh town hall and destroyed four of them. This raised the 20 number of tanks claimed by the South Vietnamese since the attack on the city began.

Phuoc Binh is the last remaining government foothold in Phuoc Long province, on the Cambodian border.

The Communist campaign in Phuoc Long province is part of an offensive that began a month ago. Military analysts say its purpose is to expand the Communists' territorial control deeper southward into the provinces north and east of Saigon in hopes of gaining political concessions from President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Automobile sales report today

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's auto makers report today on December sales figures and year-end totals.

Industry observers predicted deliveries would be off as much as they were during the previous three months, when sales dropped about 30 per cent from year-earlier levels.

Today also marked the beginning of the first full production week of 1975. The industry has been all but shut down for the Christmas-New Year's holiday.

Sales for last month were expected to be sharply below those in December 1973. That performance was seen as painful because sales in the final month of 1973 already had begun to plummet in the face of the energy crisis and consumer fears over fuel shortages.

The auto companies noted early this year that sales for all of 1973 were at record levels, making it difficult for 1974 figures to compare favorably.

Domestic sales for 1974 are now estimated to be about 7.5 million, a 23 per cent drop from the 9.3 million units that left dealer showrooms the year before.

It would be the industry's worst performance since 1970, when domestic deliveries totaled 7.15 million cars.

Sales during the first 10 days of December, normally the slowest month of the year, totaled 129,838. That was a 29 per cent decline from the same 1973 level when 182,739 autos were sold.

The companies have not reported their sales totals since then because of the annual holiday break.

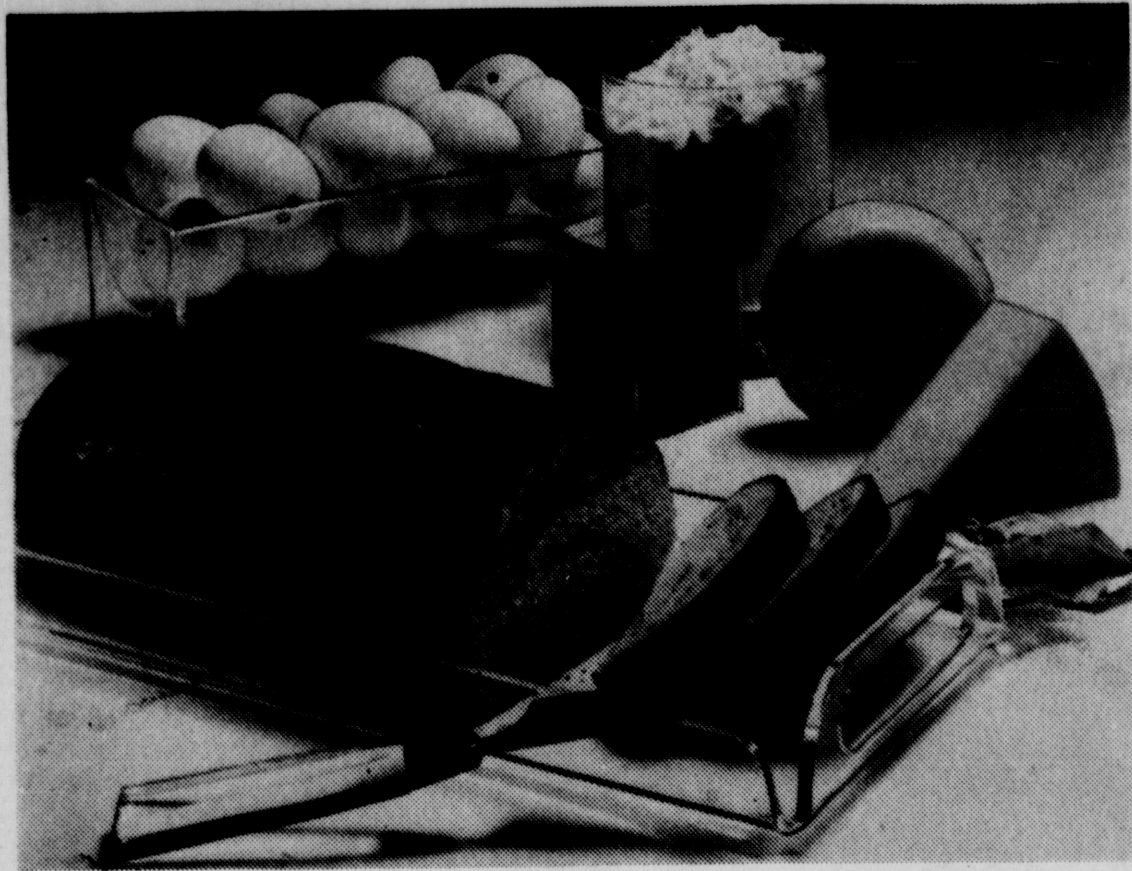

Sales in November were off 35 per cent from the year before. October sales were down 27 per cent and September deliveries declined 21 per cent.

Import sales were not expected to fare much better. Industry watchers expected sales by foreign manufacturers in the U.S. to come in under 1.4 million, a 20 per cent decline from the record 1.73 million sold in 1973.

The severe sales slump, now into its 14th month, is the most prolonged for the industry since World War II. In response, the companies have ordered unprecedented production cutbacks and worker layoffs that union officials say are the worst since the Depression of the 1930s.

Auto production in December dropped to 357,429, a 31 per cent decline from the same month last year when 517,955 cars were made. It was the lowest December total for the industry since 1951.

Auto production for the year totaled 7,340,373, a 24 per cent decline from record-breaking 1973. In 1973, 9,660,819 autos rolled off assembly lines.

Nothing beats aroma of homemade bread

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

There is nothing like the aroma of a loaf of bread baking in an oven. The taste, too, brings with it a very special sensation and the combination is one that more individuals of all ages are getting into. A cheesy poppy loaf and a beehive bread are good items to add to the home baking scene.

CHEESY POPPY LOAF

4 3/4 to 5 1/4 cups unsifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar (or equivalent sweetener)
1 package active dry yeast one-third cup softened, margarine
1 cup very warm tap water (120-130-F)
4 eggs (at room temperature)
1 1/4 cups grated Bonbel cheese
2 1/2 teaspoons poppy seed
1 tablespoon cold water
In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 1/4 cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Add margarine. Gradually add very warm tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer or with rotary beater, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 3 eggs, 1 egg white (reserve yolk for later use) and 1/2 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in cheese and enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half. Roll one half into an 8 x 12-inch rectangle. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon poppy seed. Beginning at wide side, roll up tightly. Pinch seam to seal. Taper ends by rolling gently back and forth. Place on greased baking sheet. Repeat with remaining half of dough. Beat together remaining egg yolk and 1 tablespoon water. Brush loaves with egg mixture, then sprinkle each loaf with remaining poppy seed. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 400-degrees 20 to 25 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

BEEHIVE BREAD

3 to 3 1/2 cups unsifted flour
1 teaspoon salt

1 package active dry yeast
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup water
3 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons honey
1/4 cup sugar (or equivalent)
1 tablespoon grated orange peel

Honey Glaze

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 3/4 cup flour, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine milk, water, margarine and honey in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm. Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, or with rotary beater scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and 1/2 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Combine sugar and grated orange peel. Punch dough down, divide into four equal pieces. Form 2 pieces into cone shapes about 4 inches high. Place on a greased baking sheet several inches apart. Divide remaining 2 pieces of dough in half. Roll each piece to a 20-inch rope. Wind one 20-inch rope around top of cone. Seal lower end to cone. Secure ropes with toothpicks in several places. Repeat with remaining 2 ropes and cone.

Measure out 2 teaspoons of sugar mixture. Set aside for garnish. Sprinkle remaining sugar mixture over breads. Let rise uncovered in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Bake at 350-degrees, 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Drizzle Honey Glaze over breads while hot. Sprinkle with reserve sugar mixture. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

Honey Glaze: Combine 3 tablespoons honey and one tablespoon margarine in a small saucepan. Bring to boil over medium heat.

Polly's pointers

Off flavor chills her on ice cubes

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with manufacturers who put cloth-covered buttons on dresses that will be laundered many many times. Long before the dress is worn out the buttons have pulled out and have to be replaced. — MRS. E.A.E.

DEAR HOMEMAKERS — Before the holiday season how we clean, wash and shine the house until everything sparkles. The added holiday decorations are then the frosting on the cake. During the Christmas season everyone gushes with compliments on how beautiful the house looks but we all know all good things have to end. The day the tree and the decorations come down is the stroke of midnight for that Cinderella-like look. There are marks and stains, dust and pine needles in the most unexpected places. That thorough cleaning has to start all over again.

A few Pointers on this after-holiday cleanup job seem in order. First, examine anything and everything for spots. They are easier to remove when fresh. Spotted table linens should be treated immediately even though there is not time to launder them right away.

Gravy stains can be soaked in cool water and then washed in hot suds. Scrape candlewax off with a table knife, put stained cloth between two white blotters, press with a hot iron and then rub spots remaining with cold lard or turpentine and wash in warm suds. Immediately soak any alcoholic beverage stains in cool water and then wash in warm suds. Soft drink stains may turn brown as they age so sponge them with cool water or equal parts of alcohol and water. Rub glycerine in stain, let stand about 30 minutes, rinse out and then wash in hot suds. When you get around to laundering all those linens do not bother to iron them. Roll rather than fold before storing to eliminate creasing.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Our new refrigerator has an ice maker. The cubes have a funny or "off" taste. I washed the hard plastic pan they fall into with soda and soaked it but the smell still seems to be in the pan. I even have to buy ice cubes when having a party. I certainly would like to know if there is anything I can do. — MRS. K.S.

DEAR MRS. K.S. — As the refrigerator is new you should certainly take the pan back to the dealer from whom it was purchased and ask for a new one. Meanwhile, remove what you believe to be the trouble maker and use another suitably sized pan to catch the cubes as they fall and see if there is an improvement. If the cubes continue to "taste" you should still talk to the dealer and try to find the trouble. — POLLY.

Studios are loading Academy Awards guns

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — If the current Oscar race seems duller than usual, perhaps that's because 1974 was the Year of the Copycat.

The studios seemed to aim their big guns at repeating past successes. Big budgets were expended in an effort to match the disaster epics such as "Airport" and "The Poseidon Adventure." Alas, imitation rarely produces art. Although they are succeeding at the box office, "Airport 1975," "Earthquake" and "The Towering Inferno" are attracting no serious attention for the Academy Awards, except in special effects.

Likewise the impact on the awards by "Godfather Part II" is blunted because it is a sequel. Some critics have proclaimed it better than the original, but it lacks the startling newness and the performance of Marlon Brando.

Other Oscar hopefuls seem to have a derivative nature. "Lenny" borrows heavily from Orson Wells' classic "Citizen Kane." The marvelously funny "Young Frankenstein" is based on previous screen material, as are "The Front Page," "The Three Musketeers" and "The Great Gatsby."

All this doesn't mean that the Oscar race is any less spirited. The studios are now loading the guns of January, trying to win favor in the nominations, due Feb. 24. The 3,000 Academy voters are invited to screenings here, there and everywhere. Trade papers bulge with ads. Usually reclusive stars turn up on television talk shows.

The awards season produces heartaches for studios like MGM and Columbia with no Oscar hopefuls. Also headaches for those studios with too many. For instance, Paramount must give equal treatment to "Chinatown," "Godfather Part II," "The Little Prince," "The Great Gatsby," "The Longest Yard," "The Conversation," "The Gambler" and "Murder on the Orient Express."

Not all are Oscar caliber, of course, but the makers and stars of the films need to be placated.

Eligibility for the 1974 awards is now closed, since potential nominees had to appear in a Los Angeles theater before Dec. 31. Here is how the race looks to this observer—selections are more or less in declining order:

Best picture — "The Godfather, Part II," "Lenny," "Chinatown," "Scenes from a Marriage," "The Conversation," "Murder on the Orient Express," "Young Frankenstein," "A Woman under the Influence," "The Parallax View," "The Longest Yard."

Best actress — Liv Ullman, "Scenes from a Marriage"; Gena Rowlands, "A Woman under the Influence"; Faye Dunaway, "Chinatown"; Valerie Perrine, "Lenny"; Ellen Burstyn, "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"; Diahann Carroll, "Claudine"; Goldie Hawn, "Sugarland Express".

Ann Landers

Benign tumor news makes some greeting

Dear Ann Landers: Since Christmas is the season to be jolly, I wanted to share a mimeographed note that fell out of a Christmas card. No opinion is needed. I have already formed my own.

"Dear friend, I thought you might like to know that the doctors removed a tumor the size of a baseball from Gertrude's stomach. It was not malignant, Lord be praised. She is getting along fine. Gert ate a corned beef sandwich last night, her first in years. It looks like we will have a happy 1975, after all. Hope you do, too." (Signature Deleted.) How's THAT for taste? — Philadelphia.

Dear Phil: "To each his own," said the lady as she kissed the baboon.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 44 years old, although I could pass for 35 easy. When my husband died three years ago I went into a depression. My daughter and son-in-law were a great comfort to me. I love them both very much.

I'm ashamed to admit it but I began to love my son-in-law TOO much. We became involved in a sexual relationship which I thought would end in a few months, but it didn't.

Now I find I am pregnant and don't know what to do. I haven't told my son-in-law, but my daughter has already commented on my added weight. (She has no idea what has been going on.)

Because I am in the menopause I wasn't sure I was pregnant until I went to the doctor yesterday. He confirmed it.

Please, Ann, tell me what to do. — Frantic.

Dear Fran: Go back to the doctor immediately and ask him what he feels is the best approach to your problem. You should discuss some important facts with him which you omitted from your letter. (1) Would abortion violate your religious principles? (2) Would it be safe at this time? (3) How would you, a widow, feel about raising a child without a husband?

I strongly advise against revealing the identity of the child's father should you decide to have it. Such a revelation would almost surely ruin your daughter's marriage and create endless problems. Good luck to you. You'll need it.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I heard my husband laughing and asked him what was so funny. He said, "That Ann Landers is something else!" So I read the column, and now I'm writing — something I never thought I'd do.

I've been married 40 years, raised three children of my own and several for relatives. Our kitchen has always been a happy place. I've seen tiny tots on chairs frosting cookies, teenagers making fudge, and college boys broiling hamburgers. I have also stood in that kitchen for hours, cooking for neighbors who have had a death in the family.

We have a rule in our house. If you are too busy to do the dishes, don't worry — somebody will do them. The rule works and nobody gets mad.

This morning when my husband left for work he gave me an extra kiss and said, "Thanks for your messy kitchen." I know what he meant. My kitchen looked like a tornado had hit it, because I've been busy with a relative's sick child. Those silly dishes can wait. They aren't people who need love. — Michigander.

Dea Mich: People ARE more important than things, but your "standing rule" wouldn't work in most families. They'd run out of clean dishes and somebody would always be mad.

Dugan may delay road district bill

Fourth Ward Councilman George Dugan Jr. Monday morning indicated he may be forced to delay introducing a bill to have the future of the 12-Mile Special Road District determined by the voters in the spring election.

Dugan earlier indicated he would make the proposal at tonight's city council session, scheduled for 7:30 o'clock at the Municipal Building.

However, he said Monday, "I have been having difficulty getting all my questions answered and I want to make sure my facts are straight and complete before I introduce the measure."

Dugan said his inability to thus far secure sufficient information did not reflect a reluctance on the part of any officials. "The county has been busy converting to second-class status and haven't yet had time. That's completely understandable."

The deadline for authorizing the measure to be put on the April 1 spring election ballot is March 4, 28 days before the election, Dugan explained.

Dugan was prompted to investigate the situation after it was disclosed in mid-December that two of the three district commissioners have unofficially decided not to give the city its customary share of the district's total tax revenue. The district has, for many years, contributed funds to the city rather than actually performing road and bridge work.

It was estimated that between 70 and 75 per cent of the district's entire tax revenue comes from city taxpayers. Last year, the city received $25,000 from the district which went into the city road and bridge fund.

Attending his first council session Monday night will be the city's new economic development director, John Hequembourg.

Hequembourg, who assumed his position Thursday, indicated he would make no special presentation tonight. "It'll be mostly introductory comments," he said. He indicated he will be available for questions.

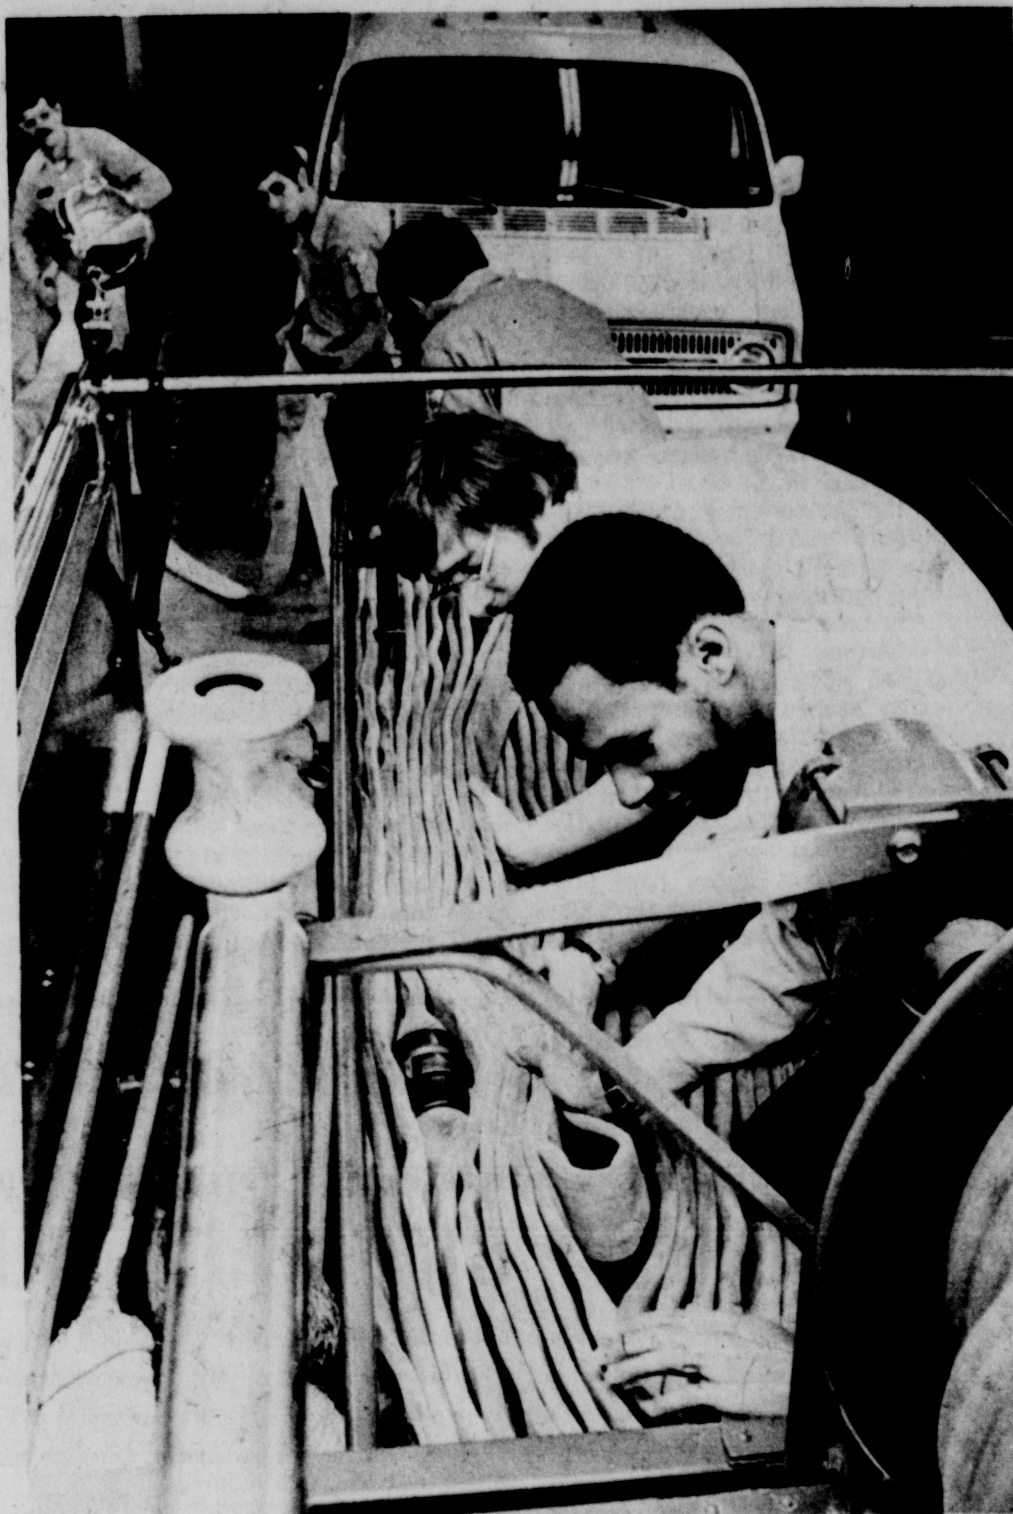

Voting machines demonstrated for county court judges

The Pettis County Court Monday morning hosted members of the League of Women Voters of Pettis County and Boone County Clerk Murry Glascock for a demonstration of the punch card voting machines used in Boone County.

The cards are punched by voters and sent into a computer for counting, and were demonstrated here at the request of the league.

According to Glascock the voting machines would cost $32,000 to have 22 installed in existing booths. For 200 completely new units the cost would be $40,000. The Boone County Clerk said he was not trying to sell the voting devices, only showing them to Pettis County judges and the League.

Presiding Judge John Bluhm said the prices quoted were those of a 1973 estimate. Judge Bluhm and the other judges said they would consider the machines, although Bluhm indicated he felt the price was high.

Back into service

Sedalia firemen load hose onto the city's 1954 Seagraves firetruck Monday morning to equip the truck for service. The truck will be used in place of the 1962 Mack truck while the Mack is equipped with a new diesel engine at Nicholson Truck Co., Kansas City. The work is expected to take about 30 days and will include everything from the transmission forward at a cost of about $14,000. The department is switching to diesel in an effort to conserve fuel and make the trucks run more efficiently. Arrangements have been made with the Kansas City fire department to test the pumping power of the new engine after it is installed.

Also to be tried with Albin is Dana L. Jenkins, 18, Walnut Hills, who is charged on an indictment with selling amphetamine tablets. He is free on $5,000.

The trial of Cynthia Pate, 19, Route 6, will be April 1. She is charged with selling codeine, barbiturates and amphetamine tablets. She is free on $10,000 bond.

The trial of Dan Balke, 18, 2305 East Tenth, was set for March 25. Balke is charged in two indictments with selling marijuana and one count of selling amphetamines and barbiturates. His bond for all three charges totals $15,000. He remains in the county jail.

Steve Curry, 25, 115½ South Ohio, will go to trial on Feb. 25 for allegedly selling hashish. His bond has been set for $5,000. Also scheduled for trial during the week of March 25 is Phillip Mefford, 17, 1417 East Seventh. He is charged on an indictment with selling $700 worth of MDA. He remains in the county jail in lieu of $7,500 bond.

The circuit court trial of Randy Gerrish, 17, 801 South Ohio, has been set for the week of April 1. He is charged on an indictment with selling $200 worth of MDA. He remains in the county jail in lieu of $7,500 bond.

The trial of Debbie Cotterman, 26, 218 South Moniteau, and James Fall, Jr., 18, 230 South Dundee, was set for the week of March 18. They are charged with selling amphetamine tablets. Fall has posted a $5,000 bond, but Miss Cotterman remains in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Christopher Jackson, 18, Warrensburg, will be tried on two grand jury indictments charging him with selling MDA, and heroin to a federal agent. He remains in jail in lieu of $17,500 bond.

The trial of James Hayworth, Jr., 19, 603 East 13th, was set for March 18. He is charged with two counts of selling heroin and remains in the county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

In cases not related to the grand jury indictments, Colby Eugene Williams, 19, Columbia, will be tried on Jan. 14 for possession of a controlled substance, 69.9 grams of marijuana. He was arrested by the sheriff's department Sept. 11. He remains in the county jail in lieu of $3,500 bond.

MoPac shops

will lay off

72 on Friday

The Missouri Pacific Railroad Shops will lay off 72 employees Friday. Superintendent Paul Edwards said Monday.

This will leave 127 employees working on an 8 a.m. to 4:40 p.m. shift. Edwards said those being laid off were low in seniority, and that all shop crafts would be affected.

Edwards cited the economy as the reason for the cutback.

Missouri Pacific public relation spokesman H. E. Hammer, St. Louis, said, "We hope the layoffs will be temporary."

"This is a rather modest cutback," Hammer said. "We hired a lot of people throughout the system in 1974, which was an all-time high year for the company. This will take us back to 1973 levels of employment."

Hammer said Mo-Pac was not closing down any of its shops in the system or cutting off trains.

"These layoffs will not affect our service or condition of our equipment," Hammer said.

According to Hammer, the railroad employees will be covered by railroad retirement benefits while they are laid off.

Adding machines taken in break-in

Two adding machines were reported taken sometime Saturday night in a break-in at National Life and Accident Insurance Co., 1106 South Grand.

Police reported that thieves kicked in a door to gain entry. No value was set for the loss.

A CB radio, valued at $165, was reported stolen from a car belonging to Mrs. Harold Bergman, 507 West Fifth, sometime Saturday night. The vehicle was parked at the Missouri Homestead at the time of the theft.

Money taken from

Sweet Springs firm

(Democrat-Capital Service)

SWEET SPRINGS — About $500 in cash was taken sometime Sunday night when thieves broke into a safe at Berry Chevrolet here, it was reported Monday.

Jack Thomas, manager, said that a window was broken out to gain entry and a glass door into the parts department was broken. Thieves cut the bottom out of a safe and then cut through eight inches of concrete inside the safe.

It was also reported that thieves broke into the offices of MFA Propane. Nothing was found missing in that break-in.

LLOYD LEWELLEN
Area Farm Management Specialist

A new UMC Agricultural Guide available at the Extension Center in Sedalia outlines how to formulate rations for beef cattle. Guide number 2052 includes all the steps and has a worksheet for balancing the ration. Information from two other Guides is needed — Guide 2067, "Daily Nutrient Requirements of Beef Cattle," and Guide 2051, "Feed Composition Tables." Getting a laboratory analysis of the nutritive value of feeds is recommended but the average value of feeds given in the Guides can be used.

Grass tetany
Grass tetany can occur in winter in Missouri. Beef cows six or more years old on grass pasture or consuming grass hay are high suspects. The weather also makes a difference; watch the herd in cloudy, windy, rainy weather when daytime temperature reaches 40 to 60 degrees. Symptoms, treatment, mineral feeding and other management suggestions are given in Guide 2101, available at the Extension Center at 1806 West 11th.

Establishing forages
Methods of establishing forages in Missouri are outlined in an Agricultural Guide available at the Extension Center in Sedalia. The author, Howell Wheaton, state forages specialist, explains seeding methods, rates and mixtures, and tips on management. Most forages may be seeded in mid-winter, early spring, or late summer. Winter seedings may be made in grains that were sown in the fall.

Ventilation Guides
Three new agricultural publications explain ventilation for livestock in cold or warm confinement and give some tips in solving problems. Some questions answered in Guide 1107 are about warm confinement; the amount of insulation needed and where it should be placed, how much air to circulate, kinds of fans and controls and the recommended air inlets to use. Main considerations for cold confinement include which direction to face the building, the openings in walls and ridge, and how to use insulation in such buildings. These are explained in Guide 1108.

Troubleshooting ventilation problems are discussed in another guide numbered 1109. Eight common symptoms that are likely to be present in this part of Missouri and gives possible causes so livestock owners can do their own troubleshooting. These Guides are available at the Extension Center in Sedalia.

Feed additives
Hog producers in the Show-Me area of Missouri may be looking for too much benefit from the antibiotics or other additives they use in rations for their hogs. University of Missouri-Columbia livestock specialists explain that research indicates that antibiotics have a disease control effect and they aid the nutrients in the feed to improve hog performance. Some common additives and how to evaluate them are explained in two new agricultural Guides, numbers 2353 and 2354, available at the Extension Center in Sedalia at 1806 W. 11th.

Fescue pastures
Cattlemen should have finished grazing fescue pastures by the end of December to avoid big losses of yield and quality.

If you graze beyond that point, better supplement feeds with potassium salt or dry hay. Farmers lose 20 to 40 per cent dry matter if fescue pastures are grazed too late. Digestibility goes way down, too. It will run 60 to 65 per cent in October but fall down to 45 to 50 per cent in February.

Crude protein stays about the same. It runs 12 to 15 per cent at its best and drops to about 10 per cent in February.

Potassium in the plant is the big problem. Researchers found that potassium levels became limiting by the end of December and that animals wouldn't eat enough fescue to maintain themselves. In other words, they eat less of a forage that is also lower in digestibility.

A supplement containing potassium salt (1.5 per cent of the ration) so that animals eat more and boost their performance is recommended. Another alternative is to supplement late pasture with dry hay. This hay, because it was harvested earlier, would give the animals enough potassium.

To make most efficient use of fescue you should graze fescue pasture first before you use your hay. In other words, try to use up your pasture before it starts becoming potassium deficient at the end of December.

Louisiana cane growers—including James Graugnard, president of the state Farm Bureau federation—have warned that dropping federal sugar controls could mean higher, less stable prices.

In its past session, Congress allowed the 40-year-old Sugar Act, which set import quotas and provided subsidies, to lapse. Louisiana growers fought repeal of the program, but Kuhfuss indicated Sunday he thought Congress took the right step.

"The price of sugar has been the most politically managed crop that we have," he said Sunday. "Now in the United States we do not have the sugar bill, and this allows freedom to move."

"The best direction and the best motivation is to allow the price to find its right place in the marketplace instead of the political arena. Politically, sugar has been more of a tool and device of the State Department than it has been used in negotiations and relationships with foreign countries over the years."

Graugnard and other sugar producers have argued that scrapping the federal controls will introduce an element of uncertainty into the sugar business that could discourage producers from expanding their crops.

Nixon's scandal actions said not ruthless enough

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy says former President Richard M. Nixon did not act ruthlessly enough in coping with the scandal and should have destroyed the tape recordings that eventually drove him from office.

In a televised interview Liddy also characterized former White House counsel John W. Dean III as a "stool pigeon" and former Nixon re-election committee head Jeb Stuart Magruder as "an accomplished, skillful liar."

"I think in all fairness to the man you'd have to put him right up there with Judas Iscariot," Liddy said of Dean, who along with Magruder was a chief prosecution witness in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Liddy said that if he is returned to prison, he would prefer not being sent to the minimum security facility where Dean is held because "I'd rather have an honest bank robber any day in the week" as a cellmate.

Liddy served about 18 months in prison before being released on bond while one of his sentences is appealed. He has been sentenced to 6 years and eight months to 20 years for his role in Watergate, 18 months for contempt of court and 1 to 3 years for his role in the Ellsberg conspiracy case.

Liddy said he identifies with U.S. District Judge John

J. Sirica, the man who imprisoned him and who has presided in most of the Watergate cases. "I really can't be too critical of Judge Sirica... He believes that the end justifies the means. He puts that into practice. He does what is necessary," Liddy said in an interview with Mike Wallace for a CBS "60 Minutes" program broadcast Sunday.

He told Wallace that Nixon was "insufficiently ruthless" in dealing with "these domestic difficulties in which he was engaged." Liddy said that when the existence of the White House tapes was disclosed, he would have stated publicly that "they are being destroyed, in fact, they have been destroyed."

Liddy refused in the interview, as he has before, to break his silence on what he knows about Watergate. But he described Watergate as a justified intelligence-gathering operation.

Liddy's wife, who participated in the interview at their suburban Oxon Hill, Md., home, described her husband as a hero for keeping silent on Watergate. She said he was "serving his country just as many of the military men have."

Only one fatality in weekend mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joseph Craig, 56, Hillsboro, Mo., was killed in a two-car accident near Lesterville in southeast Missouri early Saturday.

It was the only traffic death recorded in the state during the regular weekend counting period, from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

The highway patrol placed the mishap on Missouri 21 five miles west of Lesterville, which is about 60 miles southeast of Rolla.

Planning school safety

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's law enforcement officials are working on plans aimed at assuring the safety of four high school buildings closed Dec. 11 after an outburst of racial violence.

School Supt. William J. Leary said over the weekend that Roxbury High School, South Boston High School and two South Boston High annexes would reopen Wednesday.

He said lawyers for the school system would ask U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity today to direct law enforcement officials to provide a detailed outline of the planned safety measures.

A police spokesman said Sunday that authorities plan, among other things, heavy police patrols for the four schools. The spokesman said the patrols might be comparable to those on duty when the schools opened in September.

Last week, Boston Police Commissioner Robert McGraw requested that the schools remain closed, saying he could not guarantee the safety of students and teachers.

Variety meat exports may slow down

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exports of variety meats, including beef tongues and pork livers, have grown steadily and have played an important but little known role in the fortunes of livestock producers for many years, a report by the Agriculture Department indicated today.

But exports of those meats, also known in the trade as fancy meats and offal, could slow down this year because of cutbacks in hog and sheep slaughter, the report said. Restrictions in Europe, the biggest market, also could have an effect.

Further, meat supplies—including variety cuts—are up in all major meat-producing and importing countries, meaning there will be stiffer competition for world markets, according to the report.

The report in "Foreign Agriculture," published by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, was written by Arthur F. Haussmann, a livestock analyst in the agency.

"In calendar 1975, exportable supplies of U.S. variety meat are expected to be down slightly, with about 7 per cent more beef offal, 13 per cent less pork offal and smaller supplies of sheep offal," the report said.

U.S. variety meat exports in 1974 probably totaled around 300 million pounds, up from 281.9 million in calendar 1973 and the average annual shipments of 172.5 million pounds during the 1961-66 period, the official said.

Although exports represent only 9 to 11 per cent of total U.S. variety meat production, the foreign demand has been a modest benefit to livestock producers. The reason is that while live cattle are sold primarily for their red meat value, their prices at the farm also include what meat packers expect to get for variety meats and by products.

Europe buys about three-fourths of the U.S. variety meat sold for export and France is the largest single-country purchaser, the report said.

Beef tongues are the most popular variety meat export item, accounting for about one-fifth of the U.S. world sales in 1973. Beef livers are second in demand, followed by pork livers. Those three products make up nearly three-fifths of the variety meat export volume, the report said.

Other leading variety meat export markets include Britain, Mexico, West Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium. Other markets where demand is growing include Japan and Israel, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's once-bulging reserve of farm commodities continues to be drained off, according to the Agriculture Department's latest report on inventories.

As of last Nov. 30, the department's Commodity Credit Corporation held only 18.3 million bushels of oats valued at $11.7 million which have not been committed for sale or use. There was no corn, sorghum, barley, rye, wheat or rice in the uncommitted inventory.

A year earlier, the uncommitted reserve of government owned stocks — a barebones amount then by historical standards — included 31.3 million bushels of oats worth $20 million and lesser amounts of other feed grains as well as 4.8 million bushels of wheat value at $6.5 million.

The big drain on government owned commodities began in mid-1972 with a huge increase in U.S. exports.

Government owned stockpiles of farm commodities grew to immense proportions in the late 1950s and early 1960s because of surplus production. In 1959, for example, USDA owned $6.4 billion in farm surpluses, including 1.1 billion bushels of wheat, 1.2 billion bushels of corn, and nearly 7.6 million bales of cotton.

Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev is suffering from leukemia, and his recent cancellation of a trip to Egypt indicates the "sad necessity to contend with the progressive ravages" of the disease, the Chicago Sun Times has reported.

Columnist Charles Bartlett said Sunday his information that Brezhnev has the disease was confirmed. His column did not indicate confirmation by Soviet authorities or how seriously ill Brezhnev is.

On Friday, there were unconfirmed rumors in Moscow's foreign colony that Brezhnev is ill. Soviet officials would not talk.

In Saturday's article, Bartlett said Soviet spokesman have attributed Brezhnev's recent absences from the scene "to the flu because the knowledge that he suffers from a far more relentless affliction has been closely held."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A business associate of Spiro T. Agnew says the former vice president and he are in the process of acquiring, or are considering acquiring, 16 coal mines, the Washington Post reports.

The newspaper Sunday quoted Walter J. Dilbeck Jr. as saying foreign money was being used to make the coal deals, but "not from the Mideast."

The story also quoted Lester Burns, an attorney who represents Dilbeck and Agnew, as saying he understood that in other deals and negotiations, the two were relying for financing on "Far East, Middle East and Near East oil monies and Japanese industrialists."

Dilbeck was quoted as saying Agnew and he have bought one mine in Oklahoma, plan to close a deal on another in Kentucky, and are considering buying 14 others.

The story was from Henderson, Ky.

Economic doomsday talk is not profitable

WASHINGTON — Almost as much as the mushrooming layoffs and the growing number of bankruptcies, I am troubled these days by the torrent of gloomy stories about the economy.

Rowan

I am fearful that faddish talk about impending disaster will become a self-fulfilling prophecy. That is, we could drift into a depression because there is so much talk about a depression that almost everyone comes to expect one.

Consider the automobile industry. There is no question that it is an economic disaster area. But where do we get all this scare talk about the auto companies going out of business?

Back when Americans were buying only 5 million cars a year vast numbers of people were getting rich in the auto industry. So it is absurd to suppose that Chrysler or Ford or General Motors will go bankrupt unless people buy 10 million cars a year.

The auto companies will simply scale their organizations down to match the sales potential and still make a lot of money.

They ARE scaling down. Rapidly and painfully. But I for one doubt that much of a reduction will be necessary over the medium haul. Cars are as much a part of the lives of Americans as houses. They are transportation, yes, but more than that: status symbols, lovers' pads, escape mechanisms, ego extensions.

For as far ahead as I can see, Americans are going to buy a lot of cars.

Part of this year's malaise in the industry is a hangover from last winter's energy crisis — a crisis I now sadly suspect may have been in part a result of Richard Nixon's contriving to save his presidency.

But assuming the whole economy does not collapse, I'm staying bullish on the auto industry. People will buy new cars eventually because repair bills get too high on old ones. Or simply because most people love new cars.

But will the entire economy collapse? After all, if the auto industry scales down to remain profitable, the rippling effect itself will throw many thousands out of work in the auto and other industries. Could this pull everything down?

Not unless the Ford administration clings to the notion that inflation is the main enemy — or the President continues to do nothing.

No one can deny that inflation has reached ridiculous proportions. From 1956 to 1960 I covered the United Nations for the Minneapolis Tribune. Not eager to make out expense accounts, I made a deal with the editor for a flat $30-a-day for expenses. I could stay at the Roosevelt Hotel, eat three meals a day, hire taxis and buy other delegates drinks and still sometimes have a buck or two left over.

I was in New York recently and paid $42 for a room that was no more than a high falutin broom closet. But my real shock came when I went to dinner in this modest hotel, hungry as a wolf, and ordered a la carte. Appetizer, $3.50; steak, $10.95; salad, $3.50; spinach, $2.50...

Throw in one martini and a glass of wine to mute the shock of a dinner bill that came to $26.80 — before tip!

Still, the truth is that my employers and I can pay those ridiculous prices in 1974 just about as easily as the Tribune shelled out that $30 in 1956.

Yes, inflation seems to have reached insanity when it costs me a hundred bucks to spend a day in New York doing what I did 15 years ago for $30. But if I've got my job I can tolerate the $42 broom closet and the $10.95 steak — or I can learn to stay in lesser hostels and eat hamburger.

But if recession or depression is the real enemy and I lose my job, I have no hedge against disaster — no matter how high or low prices may be.

So let us hope that as soon as President Ford gets out of his ski boots he'll exercise a mind refreshed by all that Colorado air and get about arranging an immediate tax cut.

Pumping some consumer money into this economy might stop all the doom stories, or at least some of the prophecies of economic disaster.

When people start to BELIEVE again, they will make policy based on expectations of the best again.

And we are, as individuals and as a nation, most often just about what we expect to be.

A conservative view

Hard line on smut is needed

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — A convincing case can be made, it seems to me, in favor of the "decriminalization" of minor marijuana offenders. The question is raised: Why not decriminalize pornography, too?

Kilpatrick

If all that mattered were a perfect philosophical consistency, perhaps the point would be well taken. The argument as to marijuana is to this effect: The state should not impose criminal sanctions upon essentially private conduct unless it can be demonstrated that the conduct harms society as a whole. If this be a sound principle, why should it not apply with equal validity to pornography?

Some distinctions can be made. So far as marijuana is concerned, it is proposed only to remove the threat of a jail sentence for the mere possession of a small amount of the stuff. Half a million young people reportedly are arrested every year on such charges. Few of them actually go to jail, but all of them wind up with criminal records that may haunt them for years to come. These minor cases clog the courts and divert law enforcement officers from more serious labors.

None of this is true of pornography. Not since Stanley vs. Georgia in 1969, to the best of my knowledge, has any person been prosecuted for mere private possession of obscene material. Those who are arrested are the producers and distributors, the dealers and exploiters. Theirs is a dirty business and a big business, but obscenity cases impose no great burden on courts or police.

Some of my libertarian friends, urging the repeal of all obscenity laws, argue that no convincing proof ever has been marshaled that pornography is bad for society as a whole. They point to the experiments conducted in 1969 by the presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography. The commission concluded that "empirical research has found no reliable evidence that exposure to explicit sexual materials plays a significant role in the causation of delinquent or criminal sexual behavior among youth or adults."

Several responses can be made to that finding. Some of the "empirical research" was patently absurd. Causality cannot be measured in a beaker or plotted on a graph. In this highly subjective area of human behavior, we probably never will know precisely what motivates a man to rape or to sexual molestation. Common sense is a better guide than laboratory experiments; and common sense tells us that pornography is bound to contribute to sexual crime.

Common sense tells us something else. As the Supreme Court remarked in 1973, the proposition is self-evident that "good" books promote good behavior; for centuries men and women have been inspired by tales of heroism, charity, self-sacrifice and high example. If this be granted, it seems ludicrous to argue that "bad" books do not promote bad behavior. The connection may not be empirically demonstrable, but one is reminded of Dr. Johnson's contemptuous response when he was asked to refute Bishop Berkeley's theory of the nonexistence of matter. He kicked a large stone: "I refute it thus."

The most pervasive and lucrative traffic in pornography today is in pornographic films. Their production demands the constant recruitment of young prostitutes willing to perform on camera for pay. This ceases to be mere "private conduct between consenting adults." To argue that such films are protected by the First Amendment is to make a mockery of the First Amendment.

The pornography racket is just that: A racket. It plays upon carnal instincts that every society tries to keep under control. It profits from the debasement of the sexual relationship. This is something far more serious to community mores, in my own view, than a college student's mere possession of a marijuana cigarette. I would let the student go with no more of a fine than one pays for overparking; but if I were sitting on a jury, I could vote to send a hard-core pornographer to jail and count the day well spent.

State should own Bingham sketches

Gov. Christopher Bond has taken the initiative to ensure that Missouri retains title to nearly 100 sketches by one of its most notable artists—George Caleb Bingham.

The sketches are owned by the Mercantile Library of St. Louis, which recently announced they would be sold because the hard-pressed library is no longer able to provide the drawings the security they require.

Experts have appraised the collection as being worth nearly $3 million. Governor Bond has requested that the state be allowed to purchase the sketches through subscriptions, and the trustees of the Mercantile Library will meet with him later this month to explore the angle.

Bingham was both a frontier artist and politician, and his paintings hang in the finest museums in the country. Some of his most notable works include "Fur Traders Descending the Missouri," "County Election," "Jolly Flatboatmen in Port,"

"Boatmen on the Missouri," and his well-known "Order No. 11."

Doing most of his important work in the two decades or so preceeding the Civil War, which the sketches date from, Bingham captured on canvass the lusty and pristine flavor of life on the Missouri frontier, especially along the rivers. He also became a noted portrait painter. Along with Thomas Hart Benton, Bingham is a uniquely Missouri artist.

It was West Central Missouri—Jefferson City, Boonville, Arrow Rock (where his restored home stands), and later Kansas City, that is most intimately associated with Bingham's life.

For both artistic and historical reasons, therefore, it would be unthinkable for the state not to make every effort to obtain the Bingham sketches as a permanent part of Missouri's heritage. We applaud Governor Bond for his efforts and hope that Missourians will support the subscription drive.

Showdown over oil is urged upon Ford

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — In the backrooms of Washington, alarmed policymakers are calling for a showdown with the oil-producing countries before it is too late.

They want President Ford to serve notice upon the oil potentates that present oil prices are ruining the Western world and, therefore, constitute hostile action.

They point out that the United States has befriended the principal oil rulers in the past and has helped them develop their fields. The policymakers advocate, therefore, that the President draw upon this good will to seek an oil-price settlement that will avert the economic collapse of the West.

If a peaceful settlement cannot be reached, they believe military intervention will become inevitable. They don't see how the United States can stand by helplessly while the Western world is plunged into economic and political chaos.

They contend that the United States must take the lead in pushing down world oil prices. The other consuming countries apparently are too divided and disorganized to unite against the oil-producing bloc. They are also paralyzed with fear that their oil might be cut off completely.

The backroom strategists urge, therefore, that the United States should prepare to act on its own. An early showdown, they believe, will reduce the risk of military action.

If the allies had stood up to Adolf Hitler at the Rhineland, they say, citing a lesson from history, he would have backed down and World War II might have been avoided. In an economic sense, they suggest, the oil powers have already occupied the Rhineland.

The strategists are now preparing their arguments to present to President Ford. They also have the ear of powerful congressional leaders, who have agreed to join them in urging Ford to press forcefully for an oil price reduction.

From sources privy to the backroom discussions, here are the arguments that will be laid before the President:

✓ The Western nations simply cannot afford to pay the rigged prices that the oil cartel is now charging. These nations became dependent upon oil because it was a cheap source of energy. They cannot get along without the 30 million barrels a day that the oil cartel sells them. If they must pay $11 and $12 for a barrel of oil that costs 11 and 12 cents to produce, the Western nations, one by one, will go bankrupt.

✓ Western leaders, staggered by the sudden quadrupling of oil prices, haven't come to grips with the problem. They have offered only peripheral solutions, which cannot possibly work. The consuming countries cannot reduce consumption enough to pay the soaring oil deficit without paralyzing their economies. Recycling the massive oil profits, most experts now agree, will break down the world monetary system. Meanwhile, it will take more than a decade to develop new sources of energy.

✓ Exorbitant oil prices, like bombs, are killing people. In impoverished lands like India and Bangladesh, oil costs have reduced the funds available for food and fertilizer. This has already brought starvation to people who otherwise would have survived. One confidential analysis estimates that hundreds of thousands of people will die as a direct result of high oil bills. Some strategists speak of the oil cartel's price gouging, therefore, as economic warfare against the West, with suffering and casualties every bit as real as military warfare would bring.

✓ The oil squeeze has thrown the Atlantic alliance into disarray. America's allies suddenly are more eager to cooperate with their Arab oil suppliers than with Washington. There has been muttering inside the NATO policy councils against U.S. moves in the Middle East. If the United States should side with Israel in a new Middle East conflict, the allies likely would close their bases to the United States and the 30-year, postwar Western alliance would break apart.

✓ The United Nations also is coming under heavy Arab influence, as nervous nations seek to placate the oil sheikhs. Already, the Arabs have been able to use the U.N. to punish Israel. For example, the U.N.'s cultural arm, UNESCO, arbitrarily cut off aid to Israel and barred Israel from participating in its meetings. Intelligence reports warn that the Arab states are preparing to play a leading role, both financially and politically in the world organization.

By their control of the oil valves, in other words, the petroleum powers have begun the peaceful conquest of the Western world. The backroom strategists will tell President Ford this is intolerable.

GOLD HOARD: Rep. Phil Crane, R-Ill., tried to push through a bill last year that would drive up the value of his private gold coin collection.

The patrician ex-professor owns a $15,000 collection of gold Austrian kroners, Mexican pesos and American "double eagles." He bought 27 gold Austrian kroners for $5,000 only last May.

Thereafter, he introduced a bill, which would compel the Treasury Department to get congressional approval before it cuts loose any gold from Ft. Knox. The effect would be to restrict the gold supply, thus pushing up the price of gold already on the world market — including, of course, his own collection.

The conscientious Crane persuaded us, however, that he didn't even think of his own collection when he introduced the bill. His gold coins constitute only a small part of his overall investments and those who know Crane swear by his integrity.

High drug costs blamed on 'market domination'

NEW YORK (AP) — Limited competition among drug companies is costing consumers at least $180 million a year in the purchase of expensive antibiotics, the Council on Economic Priorities has found.

The council, a nonprofit public interest organization, said in a study released Sunday that "market domination" by large drug companies has created a situation where one company can sell the highest priced version of an antibiotic and still retain a major share of the market.

The council said a look at seven antibiotics revealed that five of the drugs were the highest priced but yet were the most widely sold.

Paul A. Brooke, who headed the study, attributed this situation to patents which last 17 years and leave the original brand name imprinted on doctors' memories, and federal regulations that require pharmacists to fill prescriptions with the brand name specified by the doctor.

"There certainly are grounds for federal antitrust authorities to look into the markets for oxytetracycline, ampicillin and erythromycin," Brooke said.

A spokesman for Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said hearings on possible antitrust violations of drug pricing would be held in the next session of Congress.

C. Joseph Stetler, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, said higher priced drugs dominated the markets because of higher quality control standards by each manufacturer, and because of the manufacturer's need to support research programs.

Officials said a car driven by Shirley Campice struck the Christianson car from the rear after the head-on collision.

Measure allows deep water ports for VLCCs

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Four years and $1.5 billion after President Ford signed the deep water port act, the sea's biggest ships will loom among Gulf of Mexico shrimp boats like elephants among mice.

They are the VLCCs, short for Very Large Crude Carriers — huge and heavy craft hailed by oil companies as a great economic advance, eyed by environmentalists as potential catastrophes.

A VLCC may carry 2.5 million barrels of crude oil. The fact that they are equipped with every safety device hasn't kept some from hitting rocks or other ships, leaving massive spills.

Their "ports" will be three pumping stations on stilts, standing 19 to 30 miles out in the Gulf, to funnel millions of barrels of crude into pipelines for refineries as far north as Detroit.

One pumping station would be 30 miles south of the beach at the Mississippi-Alabama state line, another 19 miles off Louisiana's marshy shore, a third 30 miles south of Freeport, Tex.

The expensive — but very profitable — deep-draft ports are necessary for VLCC traffic because no harbor on the Atlantic or the Gulf is deep enough for these ships.

Despite their cost, the Maritime Administration said such ports could pay for themselves quickly, based on estimates that imports may rise to 15 million barrels a day by 1985.

That's only two million barrels less than the total consumed daily in the U.S. now and imports make up only about a third of the total.

As a rough example of the money involved, say it costs $13 a ton to ship oil in a tanker of 47,000 dead weight ton (d.w.t.) size. A small VLCC of 100,000 d.w.t. could handle the oil at $8.70 a ton, a 250,000 d.w.t. tanker at $5.70 a ton, a 500,000 d.w.t. tanker at $5.15 a ton.

A ton is roughly 7½ barrels of crude. But VLCCs need deep water.

up to 100 feet, to avoid dragging bottom; Atlantic-Gulf harbors are limited to 45 feet.

Environmental forces blocked offshore oil ports along the Atlantic coast. Along the Gulf's shallow continental shelf the cheapest way to reach water 100 feet deep is to go miles off shore.

Special port facilities for VLCCs were authorized in a bill passed by Congress Dec. 17 and sent to President Ford for his signature.

The bill empowers the Transportation Department to license such ports and the Coast Guard to regulate them. Operators will be liable for up to $50 million in case of environmental damage.

As a result of Ford signing the bill, the Coast Guard now will set up rules and regulations for handling permit applications, said a spokesman for LOOP, Inc., a consortium of oil companies that persuaded the state to let it build the port. "We should have a permit in hand at the beginning of 1976, and be in operation by early '79," the spokesman added.

A New Orleans company named SPPLITT, Inc., expects to get its $168 million "Ameraport" off the Mississippi-Alabama coast into operation in 1978, a few months before the others.

Ice age studies may aid food supply predictions

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A study of the ice ages may help scientists learn to predict world food supplies of the future, a meteorologist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology says.

Scientists may be able to anticipate the smaller climatic changes that can decrease harvests and bring famine if they can learn what causes ice ages, says Professor Reginald E. Newell.

Newell outlined his theory in an article in the December issue of Technology Review, the MIT journal of science.

He suggested that recent price increases for wheat and soybeans, as well as the drought in the African Sahel, can be traced to climatic changes that could be predictable.

Sooner or later, long-range weather forecasting should become sophisticated enough to predict the changes that affect world food supplies, he said in an interview. He said it may take 20 years.

The current high price of wheat can be traced to changes in the atmospheric flow patterns over the Soviet Union in 1971 and 1972, he wrote.

Crop failures followed. Then came the huge Soviet grain deal with the United States and a worldwide increase in the price of wheat.

He said the price of soybeans rose when temperature changes in the waters off Peru reduced the catch of anchovies, a prime source of fish meal. The result was a price increase in soybeans, the most common substitute for fish meal.

The African drought, in which thousands have died of starvation, was the result of shifts in the movements of the tropical rain belt. He said men might some day be able to prepare for such shifts.

He said that in an effort to learn the secrets of climatic shifts, some scientists have been studying the movements of beetles. Newell said beetles "can run and fly considerable distances and can follow temperature changes quite rapidly."

A comparison of the habitats of beetle species today with those of their fossilized ancestors can tell scientists of temperature shifts that have taken place, Newell said.

Refinements of those methods of study may some day be applied to short-term climatic changes, Newell said.

Fatal blaze said apparent case of arson

RICHMOND, Mo. (AP) — A state investigator says a fire in which a man died here last Thursday appears to have been the result of arson.

Dale E. Wright, 47, died in the fire at a home he was renting.

"It appears to be arson because a large amount of accelerant seems to have been used," Tom Behrendsen, a fire marshal, said Sunday. "The room was ignited instantaneously."

He also said, "We don't know if the fire started on his person or elsewhere or what was the source of ignition. I doubt if we'll ever know because the fire was so strong."

John Moore, police chief, said his investigation has been halted until he receives a report from Behrendsen.

Wrong-way accident is fatal for baby

FENTON, Mo. (AP)—A 5-month old girl was killed and six other persons were injured in a wrong-way crash on Missouri 30 near here early Monday, police said.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said Angela Christianson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael R. Christianson, was killed when the Christianson car was struck head-on by a car driven by Frieda J. Ard, 45, of High Ridge.

Mrs. Ard's car, police said, was traveling east in the west-bound lanes of the divided highway when the crash occurred.

Hospitalized with injuries received in the crash were Mrs. Ard, the Christiansons, Fenton; William Kruger, 24, and Sheryl Tosie, 20, passengers in the Christianson car, and Joseph Campice, of Fenton, a passenger in a third car that became involved in the crash.

Officers said a car driven by Shirley Campice struck the Christianson car from the rear after the head-on collision.

5-year-old son also dies

Carbon monoxide poisoning kills Astros' hurler Wilson

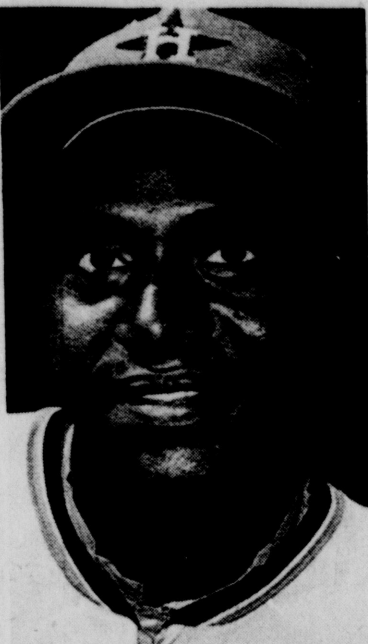

HOUSTON (AP) — Autopsy reports were expected today on the bodies of Houston Astros pitcher Don Wilson and his 5-year-old son, Alexander, both found in their carbon monoxide-filled home Sunday.

Wilson, 29, preparing to start his 10th season with the Astros, was found slumped over in his car in the attached garage of his fashionable home in the city's southwest section.

Young Alexander was found in a bedroom above the garage. Mrs. Wilson was listed in fair condition at a hospital with injuries that included a broken left jaw.

The Wilson's 9-year-old daughter, Denise, was in critical condition at a hospital and remained in a coma late Sunday night.

The tragedy started unfolding early Sunday afternoon when

Don Wilson

Mrs. Wilson phoned the fire department.

Fire department ambulance service spokesman Jack MacGillis said a woman called saying she could not wake up her children and her husband was in the car. He said the call came in at 1:24 p.m., CST.

Juvenile officer T.R. Trinkle said he talked to Mrs. Wilson at the hospital but she was under sedation.

He quoted her as saying she awoke after hearing a car motor running and went to check on the children.

She said the children "sounded like they were crying in their sleep."

Trinkle quoted her as saying she picked up the boy and took him to the master bedroom and shut the doors to both the daughter's bedroom and the master bedroom. She said she could not go back to sleep because the car motor was still running so she went to check and found her husband.

She said she called a registered nurse friend who told her to check for a pulse.

She said she did not know how she suffered the broken jaw.

Authorities said the garage and house were filled with the odor of exhaust fumes and hospital attendants said Mrs. Wilson and her daughter had inhaled carbon monoxide. The assistant Harris County medical examiner, G. Sheldon Green, declined, however, to speculate on the cause of death.

The news sent gloom throughout the Astros' organization.

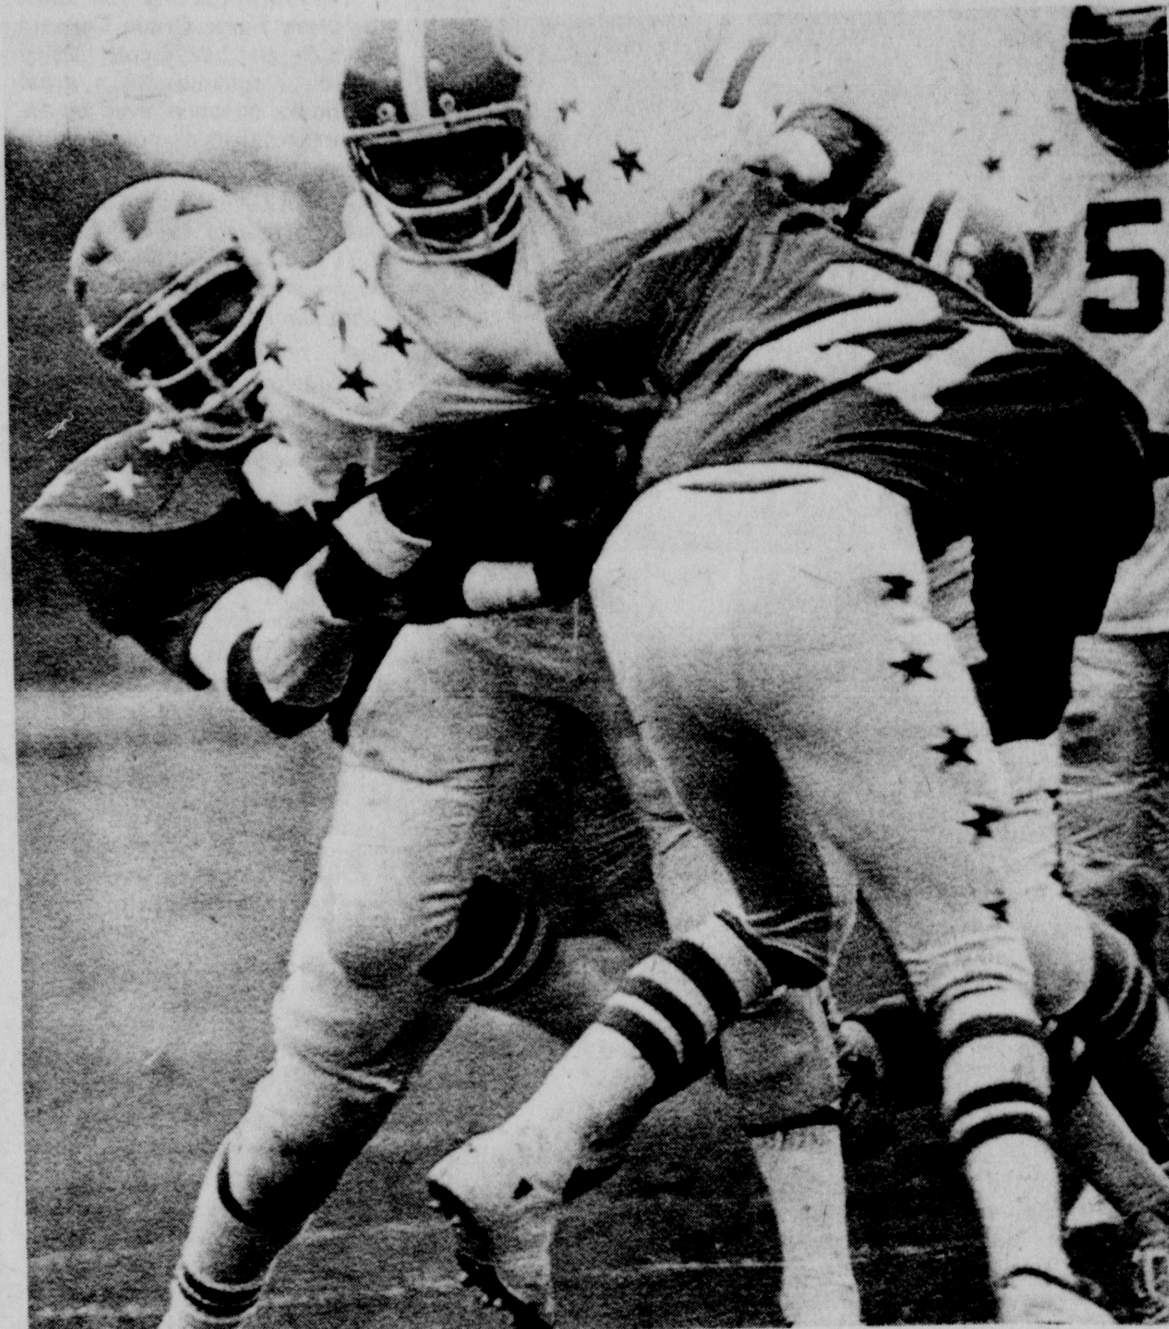

"It was a terrible shock," Astros' General Manager Spec Richardson said. "The whole organization is very sorry over this tragedy."

Astros' pitcher Dave Roberts sat teary-eyed in the hospital lobby waiting to visit Mrs. Wilson. "I couldn't believe it, he said. 'Don had everything going for him. He had it all together."

Wilson tailed off to an 11-13 record and a 3.07 earned run average last year, but he pitched two no-hitters in his career and narrowly missed a third last September when Manager Preston Gomez pulled him after eight hitless innings.

Bobby Risinger, in charge of Astros' publicity, said he had talked with Wilson several times during the off-season and he was looking forward to the 1975 season and hoping to win 20 games.

"He told me last Friday he thought he could win 20 games this season," Risinger said. "That meant a lot to Don, to win 20 games."

NCAA sessions underway today

WASHINGTON (AP) — An effort to eliminate the abuses of recruiting high school athletes highlights the 69th annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association which officially gets underway today.

The some 800 delegates face a package of 131 proposals which, in addition to recruiting reform, deal with the collegiate battle against inflation.

The recruiting proposals would, among other things, prohibit a college from contacting a student-athlete off campus until after his junior year and ban arrangements for summer jobs before enrollment in college.

Another proposal would prohibit arrangements for loans for athletes while one other would restrict schools to a maximum of three in-person, off-campus contacts with an athlete during his high school years.

NCAA officials deny the many recruiting measures being proposed to the convention are a result of last year's wooing of Moses Malone, the Petersburg, Va., high school basketball sensation who agreed to attend Maryland but later turned pro with the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

However, the then 18-year-old Malone was a victim of many of the recruiting abuses which the legislation attempts to abolish.

ish.

Malone was given a summer job at $7.50 an hour before entering Maryland. Arrangements also were made for him to obtain a loan to purchase an automobile.

Recruiters literally lived in Petersburg for months, attempting to persuade him to attend their schools. Malone also is believed to have visited a record number of schools since currently athletes have unlimited, paid visiting privileges.

The NCAA also plans to boost its enforcement staff to 11, up from the current four, to watch recruiters and other rules violators more closely. Funding of an additional $200,000 would come from an increase in members' dues and television money, a proposal which must be approved here.

The package of inflation-fighting proposals would restrict all scholarships, except football and basketball, to tuition and fees only, increase the basketball season from 26 to 27 games and would eliminate two-platoon football.

The proposal to return to one-platoon football is not given much hope for passage.

However, there is sentiment to reduce the number of football scholarships from the current allowable 105, although no action probably will be taken here because of convention rules.

Coryell, who polled 50 of 78 votes for the coaching honor, was trailed in the tabulation among sports writers and broadcasters by Houston's Sid Gillman, who had 12.

Behind the two were Buffalo's Lou Saban, New England's Chuck Fairbanks and Oakland's John Madden. Chuck Knox of Los Angeles won the honor in 1973.

"We accomplished so much more than we ever dreamed we would," Coryell acknowledged. "This is an award to the Cardinal organization, not to me as an individual."

Freddie Solomon guides South over North, 28-22

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa quarterback Freddie Solomon gave up a trip to the Hula Bowl in Hawaii to play one last time before the hometown crowd in the All-America Bowl football game. And he's glad he did.

"The people of Tampa wanted me to play in this game," Solomon said Sunday after running for two touchdowns and passing for another to lead the South to a 28-22 victory over the North. "I felt like I owed it to them."

Solomon, named the South's most valuable player, connected on all three of his passes for 66 yards and gained 45 yards on 11 rushing attempts.

It was Solomon's 26-yard scoring pass to Florida's Lee McGriff that won the game after a flurry of scoring in the final 75 seconds.

With the score tied at 14-14, Solomon tallied on an eight-yard run, then passed to McGriff for a two-point conversion.

But the North came right back, as Temple quarterback Steve Joachim engineered a 60-yard drive in 43 seconds, capped by a 16-yard pass to wide receiver Barry Hill. The North tied the game at 22-22 with a two-point conversion pass from Joachim to Temple teammate Henry Hynoski.

Solomon began his final drive on the 50 after an on-side kick. He hit McGriff with a 24-yarder on the first play, and then found the University of Florida wide receiver in the end zone for the winning touchdown.

The North drew first blood in the opening quarter when Joachim hit Steve Grogan of Kansas State with a 15-yard touchdown pass. But the South came back on the next series when Solomon carried it in from the three after a 70-yard, 11-play drive.

The North scored in the second quarter on a one-yard scoring plunge by Hynoski, and the South tied it in the third quarter on a four-yard run by Georgia's Horace King.

Hynoski, the North's most valuable player, was the game's leading rusher with 120 yards on 13 carries and one touchdown. His 52-yard run on the first play of the game set an American Bowl record for longest run from scrimmage in the eight years of the post-season game.

Cardinal mentor looks ahead

Coryell would like to improve defense

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If there are any changes in the methods of Don Coryell, they involve mainly his reappraisal of defense.

And the onetime collegiate offensive advocate, who converted the St. Louis Cardinals from losers to winners in 1974, has parlayed the reassessment into National Football League Coach of the Year honors.

"We gave up a lot of yards but very few points," observed Coryell, 50, who was chosen for The Associated Press honor by a runaway margin in votes.

"That means we were scrapping and fighting," added Coryell, whose team posted a 10-4 record and won the National Conference East title.

"We got pushed around but we were tough. If I had to pick our biggest area in improvement, it'd have to be defense just for what it allowed our offense to do."

Coryell, whose 127-24-3 record at Whittier and San Diego State was nearly unmatched in 15 collegiate seasons, inherited a Cardinal team steeped in mediocrity two years ago.

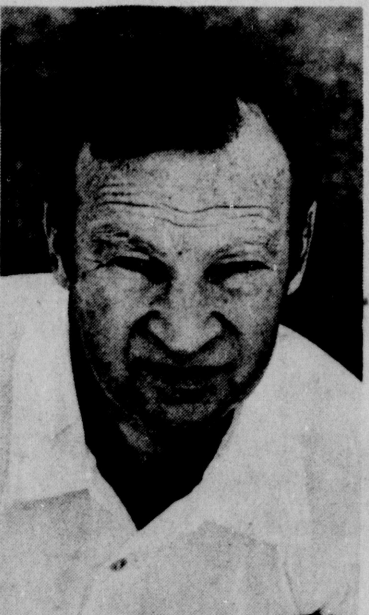

An immediate offensive renaissance geared mainly to passing ensued, but the club surrendered more than it produced and yielded 365 points in a 4-9-1 season.

"We didn't set any goals for ourselves, only to improve," reflected Coryell, whose team had a 3-4 record in exhibition before permitting 218 points in 1974.

"But the first two ball games were great games because our defense stopped both teams at the 10-yard line," he noted.

"We beat Philadelphia on four straight late incompletions, then beat the Washington Redskins with a late interception. Those two, I think, gave our team great confidence."

Don Coryell

Following the victories, the Cardinals mowed down five more opponents and were 7-0 before flagged down 17-14 by the Dallas Cowboys.

The team also bowed the following week to National Conference champion Minnesota but recovered to win twice more and again on the season's final day for the title.

"I'm sure there's no way in the world you'll find another team that would make so big a turnaround in such a short period," remarked Coryell, who called the accomplishment his greatest coaching thrill.

"It's an old cliché, of course, but I think you'll find that any winning team is not just individuals," he added.

"Individually we weren't necessarily a great team — just a very, very average team. We all realized this — all the coaches and all the

Problems resolved at MSU

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Everything is supposed to be peaches and cream now with the Michigan State basketball team.

But it remains to be seen whether Spartan fans will consider 10 maverick players as bad apples who have spoiled the season.

The 10, suspended Saturday by Coach Gus Ganakas for walking out of a team meeting, were reinstated by him Sunday after a reconciliation meeting which included the players, coaches and university athletic officials.

Ganakas characterized the reconciliation as "a matter of two lovers being separated a short period of time... Our basketball family solved this problem within the family."

"Nothing would be gained by continuing the suspensions," he said.

Captain Lindsay Hairston, spokesman for the dissidents, said: "Our grievances have been met and we're definitely ready to play basketball."

Ganakas said reinstated Spartans would play tonight at MSU's Jenison Field House against Big Ten rival Ohio State. After the suspensions Saturday, the junior varsity was called upon to face No. 2-ranked Indiana. Subsequently, Michigan State suffered the worst loss in its cage history, 107-55.

Hairston, sitting beside Ganakas at a news conference Sunday, said the walkout was the result of a number of problems. He would only specify two: workmen leaving the field-house doors open in the chilly

Michigan winter and the failure of the administration to put the pictures of the team in the lobby as has been traditional.

Precipitating the walkout, according to Ganakas, was the announcement at the team meeting that freshman forward Jeff Trof would start against Indiana to guard star Steve Green.

"The players felt a more experienced player should be put in that position," Ganakas said. "And it (the walkout) was a culmination of a lot of other things."

He said Trof would start tonight against the Buckeyes and also said he had considered continuing the suspensions for the game but changed his mind.

"It definitely was not anything to do with Trof," said Hairston. "Whoever the coach selects to play we're behind him 100 per cent."

Suspended, then reinstated, were: Hairston, a center from Detroit; guards Bill Glover of Pontiac; Benny White, Detroit; Peter Davis, Brooklyn, N.Y.;

Bob Chapman, Saginaw; forwards Lovelle Rivers, Detroit; Cedric Milton, Denver, Colo.; Edgar Wilson, Dowagiac, and Tom McGill, Flint.

Chapman and Wilson are sophomores, White, Milton and Furlow juniors, and the rest seniors.

All are black. Trof is white as is freshman James Dudley of Milwaukee, who was not involved because he is sidelined with an injury.

Both Ganakas and Hairston insisted the matter was not racially motivated.

Jabbar, Bucks hold off Bulls

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, goggles and all, is back on top of his game — and that's bad news for the rest of the National Basketball Association.

Abdul-Jabbar tossed in 33 points, including 22 in the second half, and hauled down 15 rebounds to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a tingling 96-95 victory Sunday over the Chicago Bulls, their arch-rivals in the NBA Midwest Division.

Bob Dandridge of the Bucks also poured in 33 points in the hard-fought battle, in which the Bucks watched an 11-point lead get whittled down to one in the closing minutes. The game was played before a sellout crowd at the Milwaukee Arena and a national television audience Sunday afternoon.

In Sunday night's NBA games, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Phoenix Suns 97-86, the Houston

Rockets defeated the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 115-106, the Portland Trail Blazers stopped the New Orleans Jazz 111-102 and the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Washington Bullets 112-109.

Abdul-Jabbar, who has been wearing goggles following an eye injury Oct. 5, netted 16 of his points in the final period as the Bucks, leading by 11 points with 3:17 to go, held off a Bulls' charge. The Bucks are now 4-1 against Chicago, with an average winning margin of just two points, and are only 3 1/2 games back of first-place Detroit.

The Bucks have now won five in a row, their longest winning streak of the season. Abdul-Jabbar has averaged 36 points in that skein.

Rockets 115, Kings 106

Mike Newlin came off the bench to score 37 points for the Rockets, including 16 in the third period when they broke away from a 52-52 tie to an 86-80 lead. The Rockets connected on 14 of 18 shots from the field and eight of eight from the free throw line in the quarter.

Lakers 112, Bullets 109

Brian Winters' 25-foot jumper with two seconds to go in overtime snapped a 109-109 tie for Los Angeles, then Stu Lantz added a free throw on a technical foul after Baltimore called an illegal timeout.

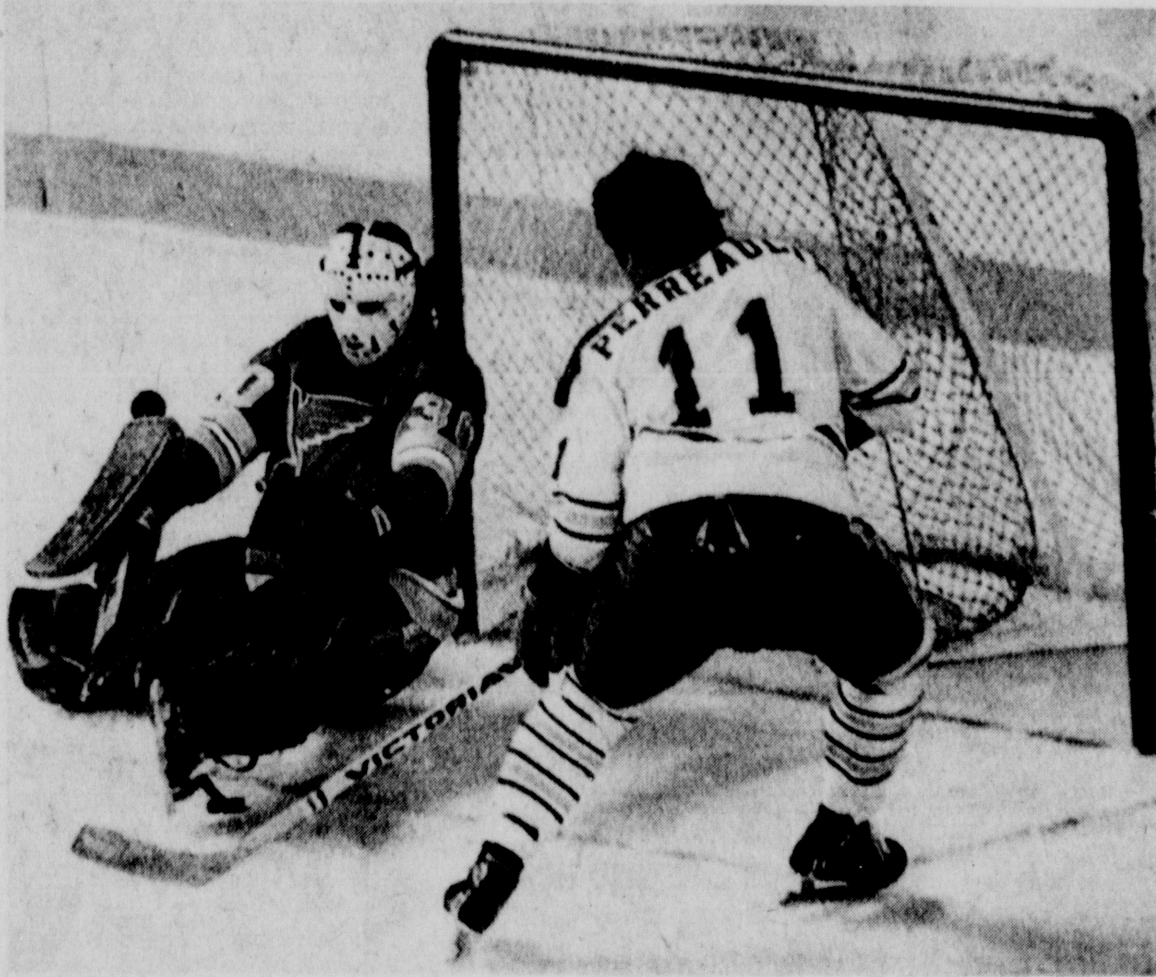

Mike Riordan scored 14 of his 34 points for the Bullets in the final period to help send the game into overtime. Lantz, starting in place of the injured Gail Goodrich, led the Lakers with 25 points. Happy Hairston added 19 — including a big three-point play in overtime — and Elmore Smith had 15.

Cavs 97, Suns 86

Bobby Smith and Dick Snyder poured in 25 points each for Cleveland, which broke the open in the second half. Jim Chones added 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Bullets 111, Jazz 102

Portland halted a five-game losing streak behind 24 points by Sidney Wicks and 20 by Geoff Petrie. The defeat dropped the expansion Jazz' record to 0-23 and their overall mark to 3-33.

Perreault beats Davidson

Sabres trip Blues, 4-2

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Sabres had just beaten the St. Louis Blues 4-2 in a National Hockey League game Sunday, and Rene Robert was talking to reporters in the Buffalo dressing room about how things can often go from bad to good.

The "bad" for Buffalo came in the first period. Although they outshot and outskated the Blues from the start, many of the Sabres' shots were wide of the net or hit the goal posts.

And the ones that were on target were stopped by St. Louis goalie John Davidson.

Then, six minutes into the second period, Red Berenson smacked a rebound past Buffalo goalie Gary Bromley and the Blues were ahead 1-0.

Then things began going the Sabres' way. Robert, firing from the rightpoint, drilled in a power play goal that evened the score.

And after the third period began, Buffalo quickly disposed of St. Louis with three goals in the first seven minutes.

Gil Perreault skated behind the Blues' net and fed the puck to Robert, who flipped it in from in front of the net. Four minutes later, Robert returned the compliment by passing to Perreault, who found an open corner of the net for another score.

About a minute later, Don Lucie picked the puck out of the air and batted it in for the Sabres' final goal.

Bill Collins scored again for the Blues, but that was all for them.

The game was played in the afternoon, rather than at night, so it could be televised nationally.

'Hounds, Montrose win tournaments

In area basketball Saturday night, the Windsor Greyhounds defeated Kingsville, 53-48, to capture the championship of its own invitational tournament. Windsor has lost only one game this season.

Likewise, undefeated Montrose swept the first-place trophy in its tournament with a 71-42 drubbing over Ballard.

Third place in the Windsor tournament went to Leeton, a 66-42 winner over Chilhowee; Appleton City finished third at Montrose with a 62-42 win over Deepwater.

Pittsburgh St. coach suspends three players

PITTSBURGH, Kan. (AP) — A decision was expected today on the length of suspensions for three Pittsburgh State basketball players, including two-time all-NAIA District 10 selection Calvin Kinzer.

Coach Bob Johnson, avoiding elaboration on the disciplinary move, said the players were suspended for violating the midnight curfew Friday at Springfield, Mo., where the Gorillas were participating in the MIAA basketball tournament.

Besides Kinzer, action was taken against George Lasley, 6-foot-6 sophomore from Kansas City, and junior Bill Honeycutt of Humboldt, Kan.

Johnson said he would make his decision today following the afternoon practice.

Pittsburgh State, 2-6, meets Drury College Wednesday night. The Gorillas lost two-of-three games they played in the MIAA tournament, including the consolation contest Saturday, 82-80, at the hands of Missouri-Rolla.

Kinzer, a 6-4 senior from Nashville, is Pittsburgh's big gun. He opened this season needing only 221 points to surpass the school's all-time leading scorer, Jim Chroust, who recorded 1,588.

Oswald: "One thing a really great player needs is the so-called 'feel' of the table. He will even go far and away against normal percentages because he suspects something abnormal."

Jim: "Here is a hand that you should recall. You were captain of the North American team that won the world's championship in 1970 and 1971. I was a member of the team and this little gem was played by my partner Bobby Wolff."

Oswald: "East won the first trick with the ace of clubs and led back the deuce of spades. West rose with the ace; cashed the king of clubs and then led back a spade. Right?"

Jim: "Yes! Then Bobby put on his thinking cap and decided that West was acting like a man who expected a trump trick. So Bobby won the spade with the queen and led the jack of hearts. West covered."

Oswald: "Then Bobby thought some more and decided that West also held the nine. So he came back to his hand with the ace of diamonds, led the ace of diamonds, let it ride, cashed dummy's ten, ruffed a good diamond to get back to his hand, cashed his ace of trumps to pick up the nine and claimed his contract."

Many new House colleagues feel they were sent there with special mandate

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — To best recollection he swore only three times during the whole back-breaking campaign for Congress.

Which says something for the brutal pace of the 100-hour weeks he was putting in, because Bob Edgar doesn't swear at all. Nor does he smoke. Nor does he lose his temper. Out of social compassion he might nurse one whisky sour to put others at ease. But he never used to touch the stuff.

He is one of the 75 new Democratic congressmen—more than half of them from suburban districts—voted into office last November in what appears to be the electorate's search for a new kind of politician.

But that politician isn't one kind of man. He is, by and large, young—from his mid-twenties through his early thirties. Lawyers, of course, members of local government including four mayors, a judge, two publishers, an author, a doctor, a research consultant, a journalist, a Roman Catholic priest and an educator. There is no typical. Robert Edgar is a Methodist minister and counselor.

They won't be sworn in until a week from Tuesday, Jan. 14, but they have begun to validate the promises they made to voters to reform the antique rules of Congress, to bring the committee process into the open, to make a youthful forum out of what some have called "an old man's club."

Until about a year ago, Bob Edgar, 31, never attended a political meeting, never knocked on a political door.

Yet this November he crushed his Republican opponent for Congress by 16,000 votes, taking 57 per cent of the votes and carrying 33 of 38 communities in his district where the registration is three to one Republican.

In fact, the suburban seventh district outside of Philadelphia has never had a Democratic congressman before.

Certainly, Bob Edgar, a square-jawed Methodist "street" minister, seemed the least likely to try, much less succeed. Even his parents were registered Republicans because that's the way things are in Delaware County, Pa.

But probably what aimed Bob Edgar at Congress was a civics lesson that involved his grandmother. She was a double amputee, and Bob Edgar's parents wanted to admit her to the county home where she could get proper care. By the rules, double amputees must be placed in first floor rooms. There were no rooms available.

An official interviewed Edgar's parents.

"The first question they

New kind of politician

Bob Edgar talks with a constituent in Chester, Pa., where he's on a walking tour to thank voters who elected him to Congress in November. He's been voted into office along with 74 other new Democratic Congressmen in what appears to be the electorate's asked," says Bob Edgar, "was 'Are you a Republican? Do you know your committeeperson? If you go the political route, we can probably get her in in two or three weeks. If you get on the waiting list, it will take two or three years."

"In fact the minister of the church my mother was a member of said, 'If you really want to get her in quickly, you should call Larry Williams' office, the Congressman."

She was admitted in three weeks.

That was five or six years ago, Edgar recalls, but it was one of those nagging frustrations that played on him. And then came the Archibald Cox firing, "the Agnew experience where he was slapped on the wrist and told to play golf for the rest of his life," the Russian wheat deal and the energy crisis.

Bob Edgar started looking for alternatives. There were none. The local Democrats were factionalized and accustomed to defeat. Inch by inch Bob Edgar found himself drawn into politics. He became the alternative he was looking for.

"I was given a 15-to-1 shot back about February of last year. And I felt pretty good about that. Because when I started, I said it was like David and 20 Goliaths with a broken slingshot. And after the newspaper came out and said I was 15-to-1, well it was like David and 15 Goliaths with a broken slingshot. And when I found my campaign manager I knew I had someone who could repair my slingshot.

The campaign manager was Ed McGuire, a fast-talking Brooklyn-born psychologist, who is vice president for student affairs at Drexel University in Philadelphia, where Bob Edgar worked as a chaplain and a counselor.

The whole month of June, McGuire put Bob Edgar to work, meeting with economists and lawyers, studying, cramming on the problems of his district, the unemployed in Chester, the rich in the suburban enclaves, the middle people trying to make their way.

Edgar is best in a one-to-one situation, or with small groups. That meant endless coffees and teas. Every day was filled out. A train station, then a supermarket, a shopping center, door bells, anywhere there were people. The five-minute speech, the one-minute speech.

Both Edgar and McGuire agree: They were there with the right issues, the right candidate, the right time. "The press really helped us," McGuire said, as scandal broke over the Republican machine.

search for a new kind of politician. Soon to be sworn in in Washington, they've already begun to validate the promises they made to voters to reform the antique rules of Congress. (AP)

Bob Edgar is almost always in control of Bob Edgar.

"I think you really have to know yourself as a person," he says. "Now this is going to sound kind of silly. But I trust me a lot."

His trim, blonde wife, Merle, marvels at him. "He's so even-tempered. That's one of his strong points. He just doesn't show anger. I can't do that. If I get angry, I lose my temper and feel guilty afterward. But he always thinks before he speaks."

Weeks after the election their modest home in Broomall, Pa., still shows signs of the campaign. A card table in the dining room holds a clutter of campaign literature, flanked by toy trucks and Cub Scout progress charts taped to the borrowed china cabinet. She warns him to be careful when he takes the car out of the garage because there are 30 Michelob beer bottles on the floor. She has collected them to make cat statues for the church.

On the buffet are an unlisted telephone, a copy of the Congressional Directory, two small children's books and a paperback edition of Richard Boling's "Power In The House," the bible for Congressional reformers.

"Bob always worked hard," Merle says. "But we never expected to have a lot of money. Oh, maybe if he became bishop..."

Their combined income—his as a chaplain and counselor at Drexel, hers as a parttime nurse—was about $15,000 a year. His congressional salary will be $42,500, and Merle will get a new dining room carpet, a dishwasher, and a new roof for the house.

The only problem is that Bob Edgar won't get his first paycheck until Feb. 1. They are living on borrowed money in the meantime.

There are great personal costs as well. One is privacy. The day after the election the Edgars got 200 calls and the phone has been ringing ever since. They got a second telephone to make calls out, and when they want privacy they sometimes take the phone off the hook.

His fellow Democratic freshmen listen in amazement when he tells them his entire campaign cost was $35,000, all but a few hundred paid for.

The young Democrats almost all feel they were sent to Congress with a mandate, Edgar says.

"It's reform minded. It's progressive. It's not like-minded on every issue. It's diverse as the Congress is diverse. But I think it feels a sense that it's come with a mandate to come up with a program... realizing that it can't do everything. But we've got to do something because we are hurting very badly as a nation."

Moynihan is praised for work in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Daniel P. Moynihan today ended his 22-month term as ambassador to India with plaudits from Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Foreign Minister Y. B. Chavan.

Driving back to the U.S. Embassy from a 20-minute farewell call on the prime minister, Moynihan said: "Our meeting couldn't have been more cordial."

He said Mrs. Gandhi described him as "a friend of India."

Moynihan leaves Tuesday to resume teaching at Harvard. He is being succeeded in New Delhi by former Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe.

Moynihan was appointed ambassador when U.S.-Indian relations were at their lowest ebb, following former President Richard M. Nixon's tilt toward Pakistan during the 1971 war on the subcontinent.

The alternative he was looking for

New Democratic Congressman Bob Edgar, photographed in Washington, is a 31-year-old Methodist minister who until about a year ago had never attended a political meeting. Frustrated by politics as they were, he'd started looking for alternatives and himself became the alternative he was looking for. He turned out to be the right candidate at the right time with the right issues. In November he won 57 per cent of the vote in the seventh district of Pennsylvania, after an arduous campaign costing only $35,000.

English-language comic strip popular in Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's first, and so far only, daily comic strip is a runaway success among everybody except the majority of native-born Israelis.

The strip, which lampoons everything from inflation to Arab terrorism, is drawn by an amiable American immigrant and appears in the English-language Jerusalem Post.

"Dry Bones," as the six-square strip is entitled, has become a favorite among diplomats, U.N. troops and English-speaking immigrants.

But an attempt to translate it into Hebrew in a mass-circulation daily flopped miserably and was quickly dropped.

"Israelis never grew up with comics," says the cartoonist, 36-year-old Ya'akov Kirschen. "They don't relate to word balloons, and perhaps they don't know where to start reading."

Motion challenged church tradition

BALTIMORE (AP) — The council of a Roman Catholic parish has voted to ask for an end to the prohibition against altar girls. Twenty-three girls have been serving Mass at the church for two years.

The vote to forward the request to Baltimore Archbishop William J. Borders and other officials came Sunday during a meeting of the parish council of the Lady of Perpetual Help Church in nearby Woodlawn. Only one of the 18 council members opposed the motion, which challenges church doctrinal tradition.

since Hebrew runs from right to left."

But the reaction to Dry Bones in English has been remarkable. Kirschen has a sheaf of letters from immigrants thanking him for ridiculing government red tape or rude bus drivers. "I thought nobody cared," most letters begin.

The strip's most popular character is a tired, paunchy Israeli in his mid-40s who became famous by offering readers a free "protektzia card," slang Hebrew for friends in high places — or "pull."

Hundreds of readers wrote in for protektzia cards. Another strip posed the question: why does Arab guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat always appear to have a three-day-old beard: among the dozens of replies — he uses inferior Israeli razor blades.

Kirschen, an ex-New Yorker, drew cartoons for Playboy and other magazines. In the 1960s,

Klammer first

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany — Austria's Franz Klammer captured the first men's downhill event of the 1975 World Cup ski competition Sunday, covering the course in a record time of 1 minute, 43.31 seconds. Saturday, Switzerland's Lise-Marie Morerod won the woman's slalom event with a combined time of 97.32 for two runs, edging out West Germany's Christa Zechmeister, last year's World Cup slalom champion.

His Jewish conscience aroused, he began drawing what he calls "a radical Zionist comic strip" for underground Jewish newspapers. In 1971 he immigrated here with his wife and three children.

Kirschen arrived with the idea of reviving the Jewish art form in Israel, "but I found that the pressures of society here demanded a morale-booster, so I created the strip."

Dry Bones' outlook is invariably positive. It is named for the story in the Biblical book of Ezekiel, in which God breathed life into dead bones to symbolize the rebirth of the Jewish people.

From its beginning two years ago, Dry Bones has reflected Kirschen's own arduous integration into Israeli society. The first strips dealt only with the bureaucracy, suicidal motorists and alienation from closely-knit Israeli society.

FOR CANCER OR HEART ATTACK

Has it happened to you? After just a short hospital stay, you're hit with a bill for hundreds of dollars—only to discover that your basic hospital insurance covers only part—and you have to come up with the rest!

And that's in addition to all those non-medical bills that were piling up at home. The rent or mortgage payments. Food bills. Telephone, gas, electric bills. Auto and credit card payments. Bills that could eat up all your savings—even land your family deep in debt.

That's why the board of doctors of Physicians Mutual Insurance Company of Omaha, Nebraska—the company run by doctors since 1902—created The Doctors Hospital Plan. It gives you the cash you need when hospital emergencies strike—pays you cash whenever you or any eligible member of your family goes to the hospital for any covered sickness or accident. Cash you can use to help pay the hospital bills your basic hospital insurance may not cover.

Here's how this plan works—and why it pays for you to enroll now.

■ It's easy to enroll—No qualifications necessary! Whatever your age, the size of your family, or your present health, you and your entire family can enroll in The Doctors Hospital Plan without any qualifications, simply by completing and mailing the Enrollment Form below with your first month's premium.

■ Your policy is issued the same day we receive your Enrollment Form! From that day on you are covered for accidents—24 hours a day—around the world.

■ Only one waiting period for new sicknesses. New sicknesses are not covered until your policy is 30 days old. This is a one-time-only waiting period—after which any new sickness is covered immediately.

■ You receive a 50% increase in cash benefits for cancer and heart attack. Yes, daily cash benefits are increased 50% if any insured member of your family is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease) or heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion).

■ There are double cash benefits, too! If you and your wife are hospitalized at the same time due to accidents—and your coverage includes your wife—you get double benefits—$1,999.20 A MONTH ($66.64 A DAY)!

■ Even pays for maternity! Yes, you can collect for hospitalization due to pregnancy, or any consequence thereof, if coverage includes your wife and your policy has been in force for 10 months.

■ Pays full benefits in Federal hospitals. You collect your regular benefits when you go to a Federal hospital for a covered sickness or accident. We don't reduce your benefits simply because you're eligible to go to a Federal hospital.

■ We pay half-benefits for job-related conditions and for mental disorder, too. The Doctors Hospital Plan even covers job-related conditions for which you may receive Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Law benefits. You will receive one-half your regular benefits for as long as 4 full weeks for any one hospital stay. And if the same condition puts you back in the hospital after you have resumed normal activities for 6 months, you are eligible to collect your benefits again. Same benefits apply for mental disorders.

■ You collect for every day you spend in the hospital for a covered sickness or accident. Yes, you are paid cash benefits from the very first day of a covered hospital confinement—for sickness or accident—for as long and for as many times as you are hospitalized, up to the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of the plan you choose.

■ We pay in addition to any other insurance—even Medicare. Whenever any eligible member of your family is hospitalized for any covered reason, you collect cash benefits over and above any other money you collect from any other insurance—even Medicare.

■ Your policy is Guaranteed Renewable. Your policy is Guaranteed Renewable for as long as you live and pay your premiums when due, or until the maximum of your policy has been paid. We cannot refuse to renew your policy simply because there's been a change in your health, you're another year older or because you've had a number of claims. Furthermore, the premium for your policy cannot be changed unless we do the same on all policies of this type in your entire state. You, of course, can drop your policy on any renewal date. Naturally, we can issue only one policy to you on a guaranteed issue basis. If you are already a Physicians Mutual policyholder and would like information about additional coverage available to you, please write for details.

■ There are these exclusions: Sickness for the first 30 days your policy is in force; pre-existing conditions (health problems that became evident or were medically treated before the effective date of your policy) for one year from the date your policy has been issued; alcoholism or drug addiction; pregnancy or any consequence thereof under the Individual or One-Parent Family plans; confinement in nursing homes, convalescent or extended-care or self-care units of hospitals.

■ The cost is modest for such high-quality protection. With The Doctors Hospital Plan you actually get all of these benefits—at a cost most people can afford—because all business is conducted directly between you and the company by mail.

IMPORTANT: The sooner we receive your Enrollment Form, the sooner The Doctors Hospital Plan will cover you. Along with your policy you will receive a simple easy-to-use Claim Form, which you send directly to the company when you want to claim your cash benefits. You risk nothing by acting promptly... but you risk losing daily cash benefits through delay. Remember, accidents and sickness are putting thousands of people in the hospital every day. Do mail your Enrollment Form now.

Now $1 enrolls you for the first month regardless of your age or the size of your family.

Choose the plan that suits you best:

Monthly renewal rates, thereafter, if under 65

$5.25 for the
INDIVIDUAL
PLAN

PAYS YOU: $571.20 a month ($19.04 a day) cash when you are hospitalized. Maximum total benefit for all losses due to accidents and sickness under this plan — $6,666.66.

The Individual is a perfect plan if you live alone or wish to insure just one member of your family.

ALL-FAMILY
PLAN

PAYS YOU: $571.20 a month ($19.04 a day) cash when you are hospitalized; $428.40 a month ($14.28 a day) when your wife is hospitalized; $285.60 a month ($9.52 a day) when an eligible child is hospitalized. Maximum total benefit for all losses due to accidents and sickness for you, your wife and your children under this plan — $13,333.33.

If yours is a young, growing family, the All-Family Plan is for you. Covers you, your wife and all your dependent children (including future additions) between 3 months and 21 years of age who are unmarried and live at home.

$8.95 for the
HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN

PAYS YOU: $571.20 a month ($19.04 a day) cash when you are hospitalized; $428.40 a month ($14.28 a day) when your wife is hospitalized. Maximum total benefit for all losses due to accidents and sickness for you and your wife under this plan — $10,000.00.

If you have no children, or if they are grown and no longer dependent on you, you will want the Husband-Wife Plan.

$7.95 for the
ONE-PARENT
FAMILY PLAN

PAYS YOU: $571.20 a month ($19.04 a day) cash when you are hospitalized; $285.60 a month ($9.52 a day) when an eligible child is hospitalized. Maximum total benefit for all losses due to accidents and sickness for you and your children under this plan — $10,000.00.

The One-Parent Family Plan is ideal if you are the only parent living with your children. Covers you and all your dependent children between 3 months and 21 years of age who are unmarried and live at home.

Even people 65 and older can be covered!

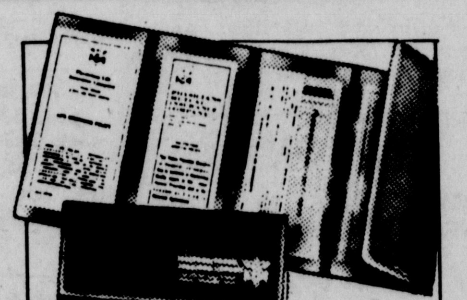

Now you can get the protection you need during the high-risk senior years without any qualifications. Not only will The Physicians Mutual Hospital Plan accept you regardless of your age, it pays you the same benefits younger folks get. There is no reduction in your benefits. This is not, however, a basic hospitalization policy. When you become 65—or if you are over 65 now—Senior Citizen rates apply. Your first month costs $1. To find your monthly renewal premium, see rates at right.

Your Age	Individual Plan	Husband-Wife Plan	All-Family Plan	One-Parent Plan
